BULK RATE U.S. POSTAGE PAID CARMEL, CA Permit No. 149

OUR 73RD YEAR, NO. 28 July 16, 1987

Let the music begin

MAESTRO SANDOR SALGO, music director and conductor of the Carmel Bach Festival since 1956, cued the opening of the 50th festival with a free performance on Monday, July 13. Crowds turned out in the Sunset Center parking lot for an evening concert. Chevron Corp. funded the free event, which included refreshments and a visit by Mr. and Mrs. Bach. Festival founders Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous were also honored with a commemorative plaque. More photos on the opening night festivities can be found on page 13. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Papal visit preparations begin to take shape

By DAVID LELAND

WITH MILITARY-like precision, the papal visit pushed forward this week as the Monterey County Board of Supervisors inked a concession agreement with the Catholic Diocese of Monterey for its rental of Laguna Seca.

Under the agreement, the diocese — led by papal visit director retired Col. Dave McNerney — will pay the county $5,000 for the day of the event and $2,500 daily for each day before and after.

Meeting before the board to discuss the on-site problems regarding the Sept. 17 visit of Pope John Paul II's visit to Laguna Seca and the Carmel Mission, McNerney demonstrated his military authority as he laid out his plans using a colorful map of the sprawling recreation area.

"It's a rather large, complex tactic," he said as he applied a pointer to his layout where 100,000 people will see the pope say Mass. "(But) we consider Laguna Seca an absolutely ideal site."

He said the raceway could hold as many as 120,000 people so 100,000 should not be too big of a problem.

Logistics surrounding the papal visit outside the campgrounds, such as traffic, road closings and such will be addressed in an environmental impact report coming before the Monterey County Planning Commission later this month.

Under the agreement, the diocese will reimburse the county for all expenses except security. The Monterey County Sheriff's Department will provide 250 deputies for the event.

The rent is being charged to offset the county's financial loss from closing Laguna Seca campground, which is expected to last for about a week.

In addition to the daily rental fee, the county will also receive 10 percent from the diocese's sale of food and beverages during the papal visit. But the diocese will be credited for the costs of any permanent improvements it makes to the recreation area.

The diocese is planning to improve the entrance to Laguna Seca to allow easier access by buses, which will begin arriving at 3 a.m. with the first ticket holders. Workers will be bused in around midnight, McNernery said.

At this point, the diocese has contracted 750 buses for the ferrying of spectators and press members from varying locations. But he added that they hope to have 1,200 buses in operation by Sept. 17.

The last bus is expected to leave the raceway at 5 p.m., McNerney said.

ONCE THERE, the spectators will find a well-lighted area surrounding the island where the pope will say Mass at about 11 that morning. The first thing they may see is a

Public ownership

Dear Editor:

As a just-retired civics instructor at Carmel High School, I have spent many hours over the years explaining the process of "eminent domain" to my students—the taking of private property by government agencies for public usage by paying a fair price to the private owner, however reluctant the owner might have been to part with his land.

Since the passage of the Coastal Act, however, I have always had to strain my support for "the greater good for the greater number" inherent in eminent domain proceedings with the realization that Coastal Commission conditions or permissions withheld from applicants for permits to use private lands always seemed to me to be "taking" of land without just compensation.

And last week the Supreme Court in the Nollan decision involving the California Coastal Commission has agreed that there are, indeed, some limits that might be placed upon at least this one public agency when it restricts or restrains private usage of private land without just compensation.

There may be a solution to current budget squabble in Sacramento and any further court limitation on restrictive government land usage policies, however. As I told many classes over the years, if we desire to have private property yet put public interests ahead of the private property owner—surely not a bad thing on many occasions—we should have the public decency to take the property in fact by paying for it, not "taking" it by keeping the owner from any real usage of it.

The governor and the Legislature have $700 million which they can't agree over. The governor's plan to remit it to taxpayers is ridiculous if given on a per capita basis—it wasn't paid in that way and any attempt to return it by some sophisticated formula won't work either. And giving the taxpayer the right to say where it wants it spent is only an appeal to self-interest and not likely to achieve much real value for anyone.

The Legislature cannot get its version of school support past the Republican minority in the Legislature in conjunction with the governor's "blue pencil" in the next budget or his veto over any special legislation. A stalemate can exist.

Why not set the money aside and make it a fund for Coastal Commission and other public agencies to use in buying private lands—not confiscating usage rights? The money is there. Returning it won't help anyone at $50 or $75 a person. But collectively it could put us in tune with the Nollan decision, provide public ownership of desirable private lands. And make the governor and Legislature quit looking like what they are—self-seeking politicians, a word I use in its poorest connotation.

'Mighty Mo'

THE APPEARANCE of the USS Missouri in Monterey Bay was such an impressive event that we couldn't resist showing you another shot from the camera of Pine Cone photographer Holly McFarland, who was one of the lucky ones to get a tour of the famous battleship. The "Mighty Mo" or "Big Mo" was proclaimed "World's Greatest Warship" by the New York Times when it was launched in January 1944. Less than two years later the USS Missouri entered the history books when on Sept. 2, 1945 the Japanese signed surrender papers ending the war in the Pacific. The big battlewagon was recommissioned in May 1986 in San Francisco and is currently on its way to the Persin Gulf to strengthen U.S. presence there. Holly McFarland's story on a Carmel visitor to the ship — after almost 40 years — can be found on page 14.

Asset to community

Dear Editor:

A lovely garden is a unique art form that improves the quality of our lives.

I would like to commend the Church of the Wayfarer for their lovely Biblical garden this year.

It is a definite asset to our community for all to enjoy!

Grand theft

Dear Editor:

Who would steal an American flag? Someone did during the night. It's a sort of a shock to find that a symbol of our country, valuable only in mind, not in any practical sense, would be stolen.

I hope that whoever took it is proudly displaying it, as I did, but my wish is to go out in the morning to get my paper and find the red, white and blue back in its accustomed place.

Clintvillainy

Dear Editor:

The appalling Paul Laub's poster of Pope John Paul II and Mayor Eastwood is a megapiece of Clintvillainy. I submit that despite the fire hazard we stage a public conflagration of them all—along with other preposterous products from the Paul Lauboratory—before this hell-bent Paradise operator gives us all guilt by association!

On the other hand, we may be able to rehabilitate our battered image by simply picketing Paradise—if we can round up a couple of fullbacks to run interference for us on the sidewalk!

Unmake his days! With head barely above the shock waves, I remain, conscientiously objecting.

In fair ground

Dear Editor:

When Rudyard Kipling lived in the county of Sussex, England, he wrote a long poem expressing his devotion to his homeplace. A portion of it is so perfectly applicable to our town and the way some of us feel about it, may I quote the lines, just substituting Carmel-by-the-Sea instead of Sussex by the Sea:

God gives to men some earth to love,
But since man's heart is small,
ordains for each one spot that proves beloved over all.

Each to his choice,
And I rejoice
The lot has fallen to me,
In a fair ground, in a fair ground,
Yes, Carmel-by-the-Sea.

And may I hope that each member of our planning commission will keep a copy of these lines in mind before going into battle against the builders with no purpose but personal aggrandizement.

Out of sync

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to the Pine Cone for the July 9 article entitled "Failed bill may cost peninsulans $2 million." This is well-done investigative journalism. Hopefully, readers of the Pine Cone can look forward to more of this type reporting.

Mayor Clint Eastwood and Sen. Henry Mello need to decide whose side they're on. Teaming up against the water district to produce a $2 million additional hit on local taxpayers to finance the proposed New San Clemente Dam is a little out of sync with the needs of their constituents. One would hope, that on sober reflection, the mayor and the senator would do everything possible to rectify this unfortunate outcome.

Clarification

IN LAST week's Pine Cone it was reported that Bob Infelise, superintendent of Carmel Unified School District, had been negotiating with the city of Carmel regarding the use of land at Carmel High School for parking tour buses.

The Pine Cone would like to clarify that Infelise had, instead, been talking with tour bus companies in attempting to come up with a price for parking the buses on school property.

Also, Infelise had been referring to buses using the school's parking lot, not the adjacent dirt lot running along Highway 1, which is not school district property.

Planners struggle with second-story issue

By NANCY HILLS

A SECOND story for the Court of the Fountains and a code amendment to allow Spencers Stationery to use a second floor for retail should keep the Carmel Planning Commission busy at its next meeting.

The commission will meet at 3:15 p.m., Wednesday, July 22 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The code amendment for Spencers may be a more difficult task than previously anticipated by some commissioners. The commission's Ad Hoc Committee on Second Stories, which is trying to develop guidelines for second stories in Carmel, struggled with a proposed ordinance on July 14 but finally told the staff to rework the proposal.

The draft ordinance revises the current code and permits certain businesses considered residentially-oriented to use a second story for retail as part of a single two-story store.

Spencers may move from its location on Ocean Avenue of 50 years to a two-story building behind The Court of the Golden Bough, also on Ocean Avenue. The rent on the original location has been increased from about $3,500 to $8,000 a month.

The building is located in the residential-limited commercial district (RC) which originally did not include stationery stores as an allowed use. The city council July 7 conducted a first reading on an ordinance which added stationery stores to the list of uses in that district. They will have the second reading in August, and if approved, it will become law in 30 days.

Because the building Spencers' owner Jim Dougherty wants to purchase is two stories and has less floor space than the present store, Dougherty needs to use both floors for retail use (though the cash register will be located on the first level). Retail is prohibited on second floors, with the exception of Carmel Plaza.

In response to an application by Dorothea Roberts to move her gallery, Casa Dolores, the commission approved a special resolution a month ago which allows retail uses on the second floor — third level — of Carmel Plaza.

The commission is trying to write an ordinance that would allow Spencers and other local residentially-oriented businesses faced with the same circumstance as Dougherty to use a second floor without opening all second stories in the city to new retail uses. Some are currently grandfathered in.

Additionally, Dougherty has requested to expand the building by 180 square feet over that allowed by code. The commission will also consider that request at the meeting.

Dougherty refused to comment on any of the issues.

THE SECOND second-story application the commission will consider at the meeting is for an addition of apartments over the Court of the Fountains on the corner of Mission Street and Seventh Avenue.

The commission will consider a use permit for the second-story addition and determine if an environmental impact report should be compiled before a decision is made.

The courtyard is located in the service commercial district and not subject to the moratorium on second stories in the central commercial district imposed by the city council June 2.

When the application was reviewed by the planning commission in June, the commissioners expressed concern over the mass and look of the apartments.

Originally, the property owners, Ted and Robert Leidig, applied for 12 one-bedroom apartments over the south and north wings of the courtyard.

That extended one side of the building over the 80 feet code limit for building frontage.

The Leidigs have resubmitted plans that reduce the number of apartments to 10 and bring the building size to 80 feet.

Robert Leidig said they have set the apartments back by 4 feet on the ends so they will not be seen.

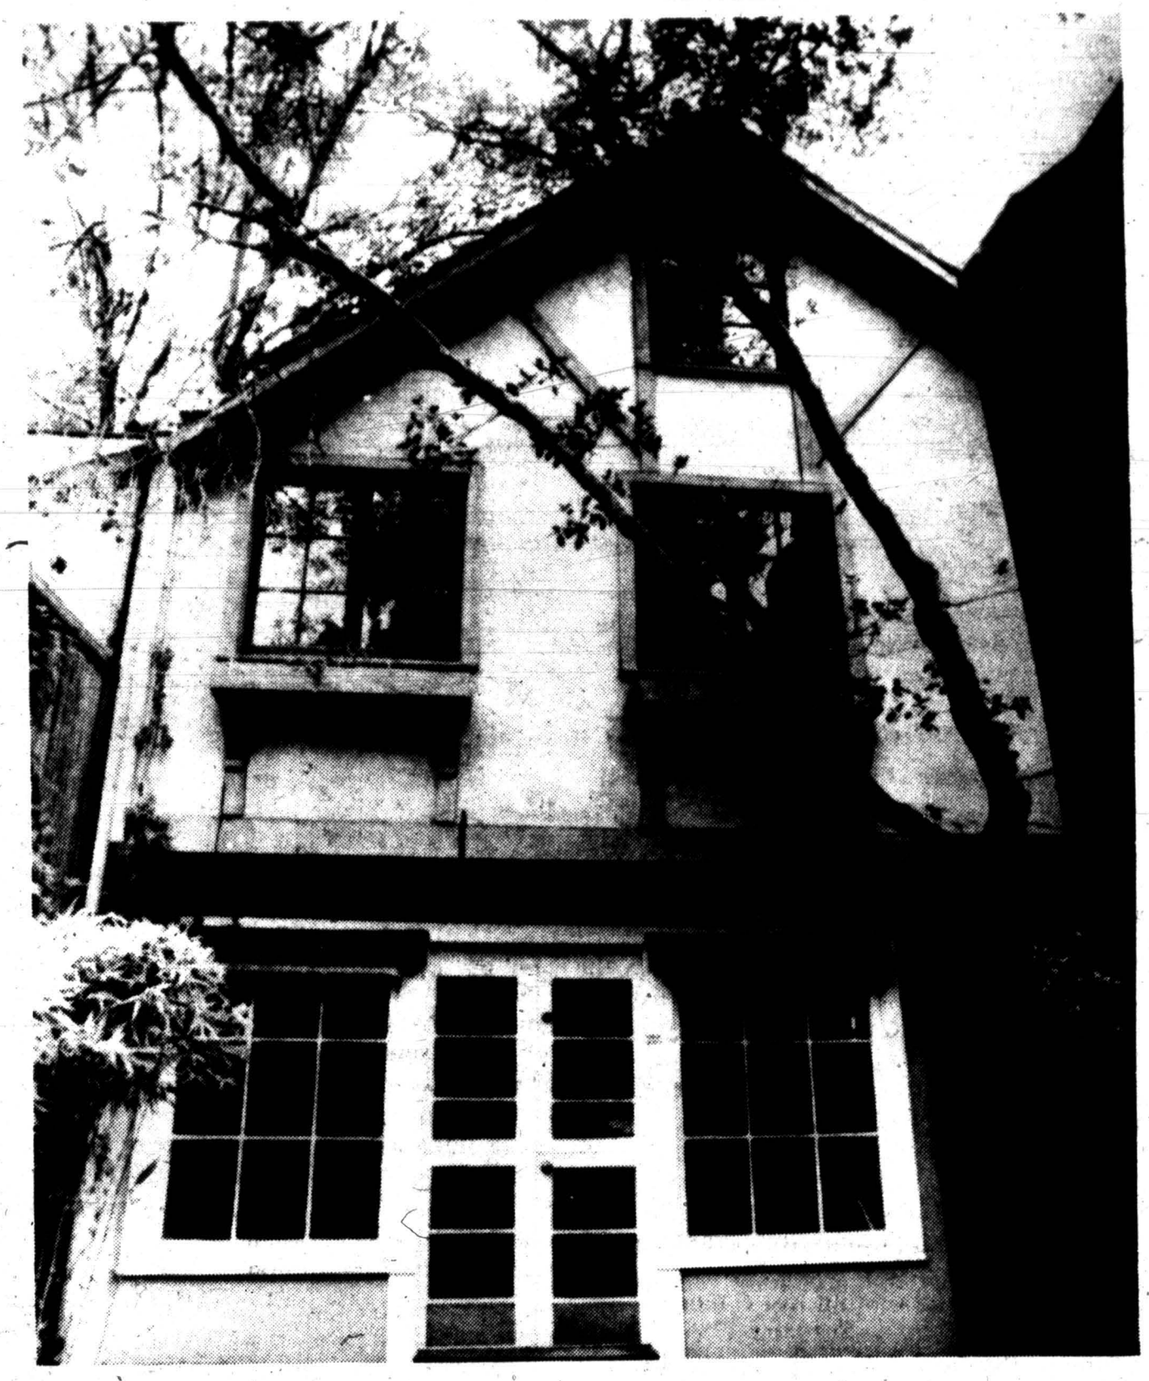
"We are trying to maintain the same visual effect as is there now," Leidig said.

Also, the apartments would extend over a portion — a section owned by the Leidigs — of the Well's Fargo Bank parking lot adjacent to the courtyard, creating an area of covered parking.

The Leidigs own a part of the parking lot with five parking spaces and propose to restrip the lot to allow for 10 spaces, the required number for 10 apartments in the SC district.

Planning staff research indicated a use permit granted to the courtyard years ago requires five parking spaces for the commercial uses in the Court of the Fountains buildings. If those spaces are the five spaces the Leidigs plan to restrip, the project will still be five spaces short of the code.

The Leidigs contend that a use permit granted when the courtyard was built allows them to use other parking spaces in the lot for commercial parking.



JIM DOUGHERTY, owner of Spencers Stationery on Ocean Avenue, wishes to purchase this building located behind the Court of the Golden Bough on Ocean Avenue and move in the 50-year-old stationery store. On July 22, the Carmel Planning Commission will consider an ordinance change that will allow him to use the second floor for retail use. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Water board approves a water conservation ordinance

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board gave final approval on a districtwide water conservation ordinance and approved an agreement on the basics of a water reclamation plant memorandum with the Pebble Beach Co. at its meeting July 13.

Both projects are intended to stretch the peninsula water supply until a proposed New San Clemente Dam comes on line. The dam, which must still be approved by voters, will not be completed until at least 1993.

The board also approved the purchase of 1,000 water conservation kits for distribution to residents. The kits are a part of a pilot project designed for the entire district.

The districtwide conservation ordinance was reworked and revised in several board meetings to adjust to public input and concerns.

The district hopes the combination of the water conservation ordinance and kit distribution project will reduce water consumption by up to 18 percent a year, water district general manager Bruce Buel said. The ordinance alone could reduce water consumption by 9 percent or 1,620 acre feet per year.

The final draft of the ordinance, which takes effect in 30 days, includes provisions for both residential and commercial replacement of plumbing fixtures.

The ordinance mandates that:

• Mandatory retrofit upon change of ownership or commercial use. All existing residential and commercial structures must replace existing plumbing fixtures with 1.5-gallon or less per-flush toilets and 2.5-gallon or less per-minute showerheads.

• Mandatory retrofit upon expansion of use.

All residential, commercial, public and industrial reconstruction, remodels or additions that add bathrooms and/or increase floor area of existing structures by 25 percent or greater shall be considered new construction and comply with the same rules.

• Any location that has installed 3.5-gallon per-flush toilets is exempted from the retrofit provisions for 10 years. However, those toilets must use a device that reduces water consumption by at least 1 gallon per flush.

• Any location that has plumbing which cannot be retrofit with existing technology is exempt. When the technology comes available, those too will have to comply.

• Proof of the retrofitting must be provided by the seller of the property (or his agent), before the close of escrow. Certification can be through a plumbing permit; inspection by city or county official; a statement accompanied by plumbing fixture receipts and labor contract or declaration of self-installation.

• All businesses must install water conservation kits at their own expense within 120 days of when the ordinance takes effect on Aug. 14. The kits include devices that reduce toilet water consumption by 1 gallon per flush, faucet aerators and, where appropriate, low-flow showerheads. All hotels and motels within the district are required to comply.

The water district also revived its plan to conduct a residential water conservation kit distribution program in conjunction with the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency.

The board authorized the $7,500 for the purchase of 1,000 kits to be distributed free of charge in parts of Seaside and Pacific Grove as a pilot program. The distribution will begin if agreements can be reached with the cities involved and MRWPCA.

Buel said that that the district hopes to begin the program in mid-August.

The kits include a toilet dam to reduce water consumption by 1 gallon per flush, two low-flow showerheads and faucet aerators.

The water district would distribute the kits door to door, then conduct a follow-up program to determine how many kits were in use and assist in installation if needed.

The district board was considering proceeding with the program on its own when the two agencies appeared to have different types of programs in mind.

In the pilot program, sewage flows will be monitored to test the effectiveness of the program, Buel explained to the board.

If the pilot program is successful, the district will continue the distribution program to the entire residential area of the water district.

A WATER reclamation plant for the peninsula also moved an important step closer at the meeting when the board approved a memorandum of understanding between the district and the Pebble Beach Co. on the project.

The memorandum directs Pebble Beach Co. to advance the money for the "redesign, engineering and related tasks preparatory to construction of the project."

The district and company will redesign reclamation plans already drawn up for the Carmel Sanitary District.

The proposed $15 million plant would provide about 800 acre feet of reclaimed non-potable water to irrigate peninsula golf courses, primarily in Pebble Beach.

An equivalent amount of potable (drinkable) water now used on the golf courses would then be available for consumption by district residents and businesses. The district currently plans to allocate the water among the cities and portions of Monterey County within the water district.

The understanding states that Pebble Beach Co. will "assure payment" of the balance of capital and net operating costs of the plant not covered by revenues garnered through the sale of the reclaimed water to golf courses. The reclaimed water will be sold for no more than is charged for potable water.

In return, the company will receive a guarantee of potable water for development of currently "unsubdivided lands" in Del Monte Forest. The water entitlement will "not exceed 380 acre feet," the agreement states. That would leave at least 420 acre feet for the district to reallocate.

The company will still pay connection charges that go to help pay for the proposed dam on any homes developed in the currently unsubdivided lands.

Many other agreements, such as memorandums of understanding between the district and Carmel Sanitary District and Pebble Beach Community Services District, will still have to be worked out before the plant becomes a reality, Buel explained.

However, if all goes well, he added, the plant may be in operation sometime in late 1988.

Preparations for pope's visit taking shape

100-foot cross behind where the pope will speak.

All ticket holders will either stand or sit on the grass, McNerney said, except for the elderly or infirm, who will be issued chairs.

"There's not a bad seat in the house," he said.

Also, before entering the recreational area, all ticket holders will pass through a metal detector, under the direction of the U.S. Secret Service.

As part of the contractual agreement with the county, the board of supervisors will receive 250 tickets which they can dispose of as they wish, McNerney said.

He added that all tickets for the papal visit are free, but contributions to the church will be appreciated.

In order to cut down on possible selling of tickets, the diocese will not issue the vouchers until the first part of September.

"That will serve to decrease the scalping element," McNerney said.

He added that the board of supervisors will be included with heads of state in greeting the pope when he arrives at Monterey Airport at 9:30 a.m.

During the short time the pope is at Laguna Seca, the recreational area will resemble a small city — replete with medical services provided by Dominican Hospital in Santa Cruz.

More than 125 volunteers will be on hand in case of emergency at both the raceway and the Carmel Mission Basilica.

Hospital officials said the emergency medical care effort may be a major one, with many elderly and frail people expected to attend the Mass. Couple that with the possibility of hot weather and potential problems arise.

Among the expected complaints are heat stroke and exhaustion, bee stings and other insect bites, orthopedic injuries and cuts and bruises, hospital officials said.

The diocese is also required under the proposed agreement to obtain a $5 million insurance policy that names as beneficiaries the county, Sports Car Racing of the Monterey Peninsula and the U.S. Army.

At Tuesday's meeting the supervisors also suggested to McNerney that it would be nice if the pope could mention that Sept. 17 is also the 200th anniversary of the signing of the U.S. Constitution.

"It would be wonderful for the pope to acknowledge that we are celebrating a great day in history," said 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck.

McNerney told the board that the pope had already been submitted a draft which talks about that special day in U.S. history, but he is under no obligation to read from that document.

And while the board was full of accolades for McNerney and his staff, the feeling was mutual.

"I've had the cooperation from all areas of the county," McNerney said. "I would not have been able to move this fast if all the county agencies had not moved in concert."

MEANWHILE, PLANS for the papal visit to the Carmel Mission continued to move forward, with police making public which roads will be closed from midnight to 6 p.m. that day.

The pope will fly by helicopter to the mission after he says Mass at Laguna Seca; police estimate the crowd at the mission to be about 4,400.

As with the papal visit to Laguna Seca, no one will be allowed to walk into the mission unaccompanied, even if he has a ticket and lives nearby. All people will be bused into the area by diocese buses.

"Nobody will be allowed to walk in at all," said Capt. Don Fuselier, Carmel police.

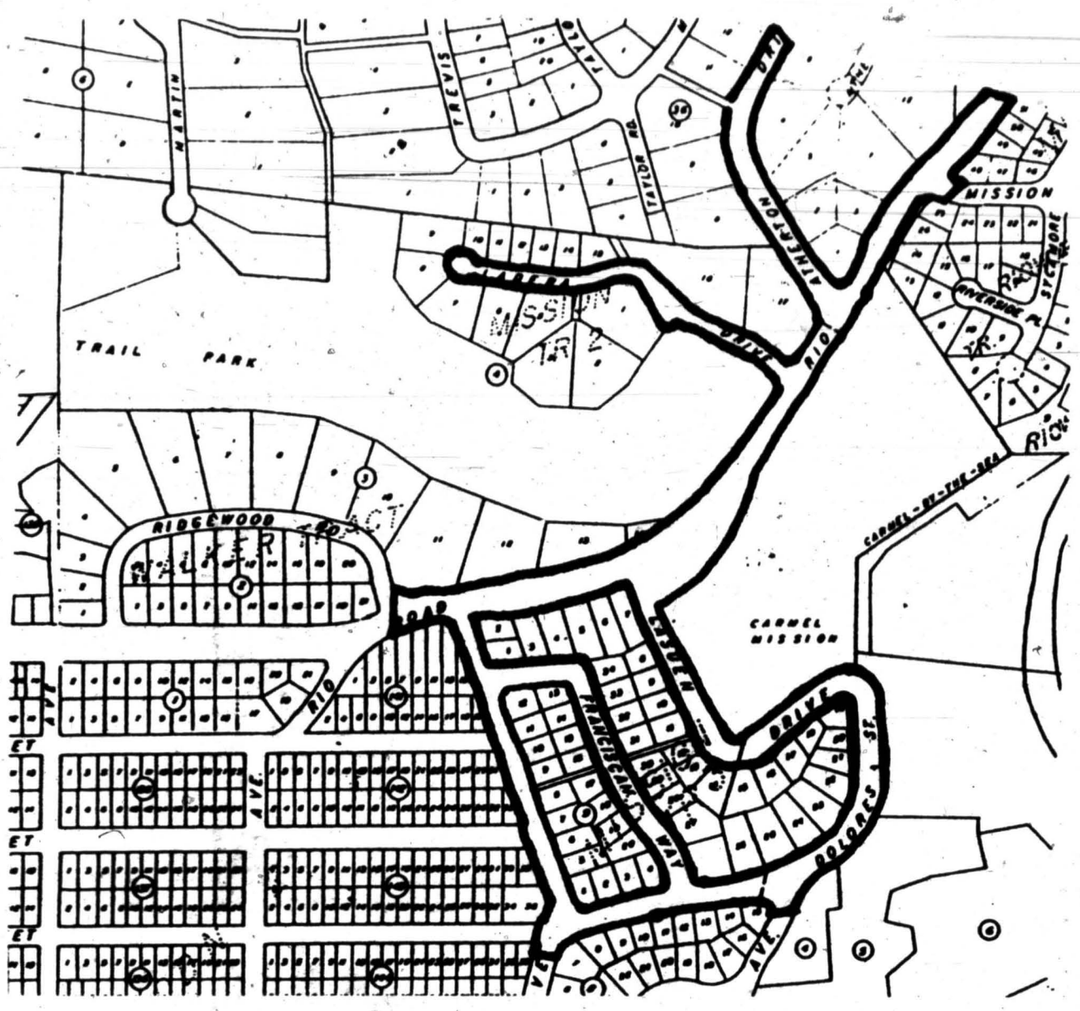
To insure that nobody violates that rule, the following roads will be closed:

- Both sides of Rio Road from the intersection of Rio Road and Ridgewood south to Highway 1.
- Both sides of Franciscan Way from Santa Lucia south to the city limits.
- Both sides of Dolores Street from Santa Lucia south to the city limits.
- Both sides of Lasuen Drive from the intersection of Rio Road and Lasuen, west to the city limits.
- Both sides of Ladera Drive to Rio Road.
- All of Atherton Drive.

The closure of those streets will be enforced by barricades, signs and police officers.

Fliers will be distributed door to door before the visit to alert residents of the street closing.

Those residents living on a closed street will be allowed to travel to and from their home only, Fuselier said.



THE ROADS outlined in black will be closed to cars and pedestrians on Sept. 17, the day of the papal visit to the Carmel Mission Basilica. Residents living on the closed streets will be able to travel to and from their homes, but not to the mission itself.

County planners get relief in carrying out CV plan

By DAVID LELAND

CARRYING OUT the instructions of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors regarding the Carmel Valley Master Plan has become a planner's nightmare, say county planners.

With that in mind, the board Tuesday extended an interim ordinance, first adopted June 2, for an additional 10 months and 15 days so the planning staff can catch up on its work.

The extended ordinance provides a mechanism to fully review and apply all of the policies in the 20-year plan for the valley and to be able to condition development when necessary, according to Lynne Mounday, a county senior planner.

Mounday assured The Pine Cone that the county is still processing building permits for the valley, where a moratorium had existed for seven years while the plan had been under the scrutiny of the courts.

That moratorium was lifted by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver last March.

Under the plan there will be 2,181 new units allowed to be built in the 13-mile long valley. One thousand of those are residential lots of record and 1,181 will be new construction on new lots of record.

When asked how many permits had been filed with the county, Mounday said he was unsure and that is one of the glitches that still needs to be worked out.

All of that information is available, but it is in different county offices and cannot be drawn upon easily, he said. He added that the county is currently working on a system so that information will be stored in a computer for easy access.

He added that the 572 lots of record for private residences are not under any legal allocation and are under no restrictions.

In other words, as many of those people can apply as they want and that number will be subtracted off the end-of-the-year figures of building in the valley.

The county is also currently in the process of selecting a minor subdivision committee for the valley, which will review those subdivisions slated for that area.

ONE OF the roadblocks the planning department has faced is how much to charge for building fees within the valley — those will be used for road maintenance.

Initially, Mounday said he believed that the county would be able to come up with that information by the end of the interim ordinance, which would have expried July 17. Now, he thinks the county can have that part of the plan together by mid September.

Part of that delay has hinged upon similar development plans for areas along Highway 68, which Mounday said will soon come before the board of supervisors for review.

In working with the public works department coming up with the plan, Mounday said he will use the Highway 68 plan as a "model."

Another aspect of the ordinance Mounday has been working on concerns rezoning all of the land within the valley. He said that will take until at least December to complete.

In order to carry out that part of the ordinance, the planning staff must take each property in the valley and compare it with the restrictions placed upon it by the area land use plan.

Before the area can be rezoned, the proposed plans must be published, there must be a public hearing and a map must be produced for public scrutiny.

Mounday was not sure when the board of supervisors would begin hearing the planners proposals on the new zoning.

He said there may be some that come before the board before others because of building priorities.

He added that all of the valley would be rezoned from its previous designation.

In general, Mounday said the county has been forced to develop a whole new set of operations to cope with the stringent guidelines of the master plan.

"It's OK in a concept plan to have things general," said Mounday, referring to the initial master plan given to the county planning staff. "But you need to get things more specific."

Residents warned of filter scam

Some unscrupulous businesses selling home filtration devices promote their products by capitalizing on people's concerns for the safety of their drinking water.

In a number of cases, salespeople have misrepresented themselves as employees of the water company or made false claims about the quality of the public water supply. These activities are illegal in California.

Consumers should be suspicious of scare or hard-sell tactics. The fact is, no additional treatment of your tap water is necessary to ensure safety.

For reasons other than safety, the purchase of home filter systems may sometimes be desirable. It's a matter of personal taste. Some filter systems claim to enhance the taste of tap water.

California-American Water Co. personnel always carry identification and seldom call at night. If you have any questions or concerns about your water or persons claiming to represent Cal-Am Water Co., please call 373-3051 or your local police department or the district attorney.

Church columbarium plan rejected by planners

By NANCY HILLS

ALL SAINTS' Episcopal Church lost its bid to build a columbarium on its grounds when the Carmel Planning Commission unanimously denied its application.

Citing that it would set a "bad precedent" for the residential zone and was against the city code, commissioners quickly decided to vote July 8 against a columbarium, a repository for ashes of the dead at the church.

All Saints', at southwest corner of Dolores Street and Ninth Avenue, applied for a permit to establish a small columbarium on the church grounds and out of the public view. The church and grounds are in the residential district.

The application elicted a letter from many of the church's neighbors opposing the columbarium.

Father Allan Wolter, representing All Saints', said in a later interview with The Carmel Pine Cone that he may appeal the decision to the city council.

The commission, however, was adamant in its denial.

"I think a very large precedent would be set here by allowing columbariums in the city," Commissioner Bill Brown said. "I think cemeteries are very touchy items. If anything should happen to the church and they decide to move, I know it is a real problem. I think establishing a columbarium sets a very bad precedent — especially in the R-1 district."

"I don't believe it is a part of the code," Commissioner Howard Nieman, Jr. said. "This is a land use issue rather than any other type of question and that's what we're supposed to look at."

Vice Chairman Olof Dahlstrand, acting as chairman for Ken White, had previously stated he believed it was against the code because it was not one of the permitted uses listed for the R-1 district.

If it is not expressly listed as an allowed use, the code states that it is prohibited in the zone. The commission also felt it was not a part of a church's function, which would have made it automatically legal. Churches are a permitted use in the residential district.

Neighbors had expressed concern about parking and increased activity at the church if the repository was added, but a staff report stated that other churches with such facilities found no increase in traffic or noise. All Saints' already conducts funeral services at the church, so no increase in activity was expected.

WOLTER, SPEAKING before the commission, held forth that graveyards and columbariums are part of a church's function.

"Only in recent years have public cemeteries become popular," Wolter said. "They were always in a church or chapel before. In Hawaii, almost every church has one."

The columbarium would not be a commercial venture, Wolter said, and is only for the active members of the congregation. It would take up only a space of 25 feet by 50 feet with no exterior changes to the church.

"This is a small venture to have the remains of loved ones near the altar of the church. I don't know what the cost would be but I know what an expense funerals can be to a family. This would be very reasonable," Wolter said. "We know it is important to the grieving process to visit the burial place."

Though many had written letters against the columbarium, only one, Robert Copeland, addressed the commission in person.

Copeland told the commission that years ago "the planning commission — which I consider to be the most important (political) body in Carmel — they allowed a very large church to be built on residential property without a parking facility.

That has caused the neighbors problems, he said, when people coming to the church activities use "our parking, double park, use our driveways."

"It's done in a very arrogant manner. We are all serfs bearing the brunt of all this activity," Copeland said.

"I believe there is ample services for columbariums in our county," he added.

Copeland questioned whether the church would go on to add a crematorium later.

"Is Rev. Wolter now looking in catalogues for the 'Little Daisy' incinerator?" Copeland asked. "Will Church of the Wayfarer ask for a mausoleum to replace its biblical gardens? The Carmel Presbyterian Church is to dig up its parking lot to put in a graveyard?"

In response to Copeland's comments, Wolter said that he has "never known a church with a columbarium that offers cremation." He added that if anyone who comes to the church has been inconsiderate, the church was "very, very sorry" and he could appreciate that it has been a burden on local residents.

But parking and crematoriums were not the issue for the planning commission at this particular meeting, and with Commissioner Ed Hicks making the motion, commissioners voted against the application.

Rep. Panetta seeks interns for fall

REP. LEON E. Panetta is accepting applications from college students who wish to serve as interns in his Washington, D.C. office during the fall of 1987.

Panetta said the applicants should be prepared to work in his office from September until December.

Students interested in a fall internship should send a postcard requesting an application to Rep. Leon E. Panetta, 339 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515. The deadline for receipt of applications is July 31, and Panetta urged interested students to request an application as soon as possible.

Panetta said that interns would do research, writing, and office support work. He also said they would be reponsible for their own housing, transportation, and other expenses in Washington.

Panetta said he would also accept applications for potential interns who wish to serve during the winter months - January through March.

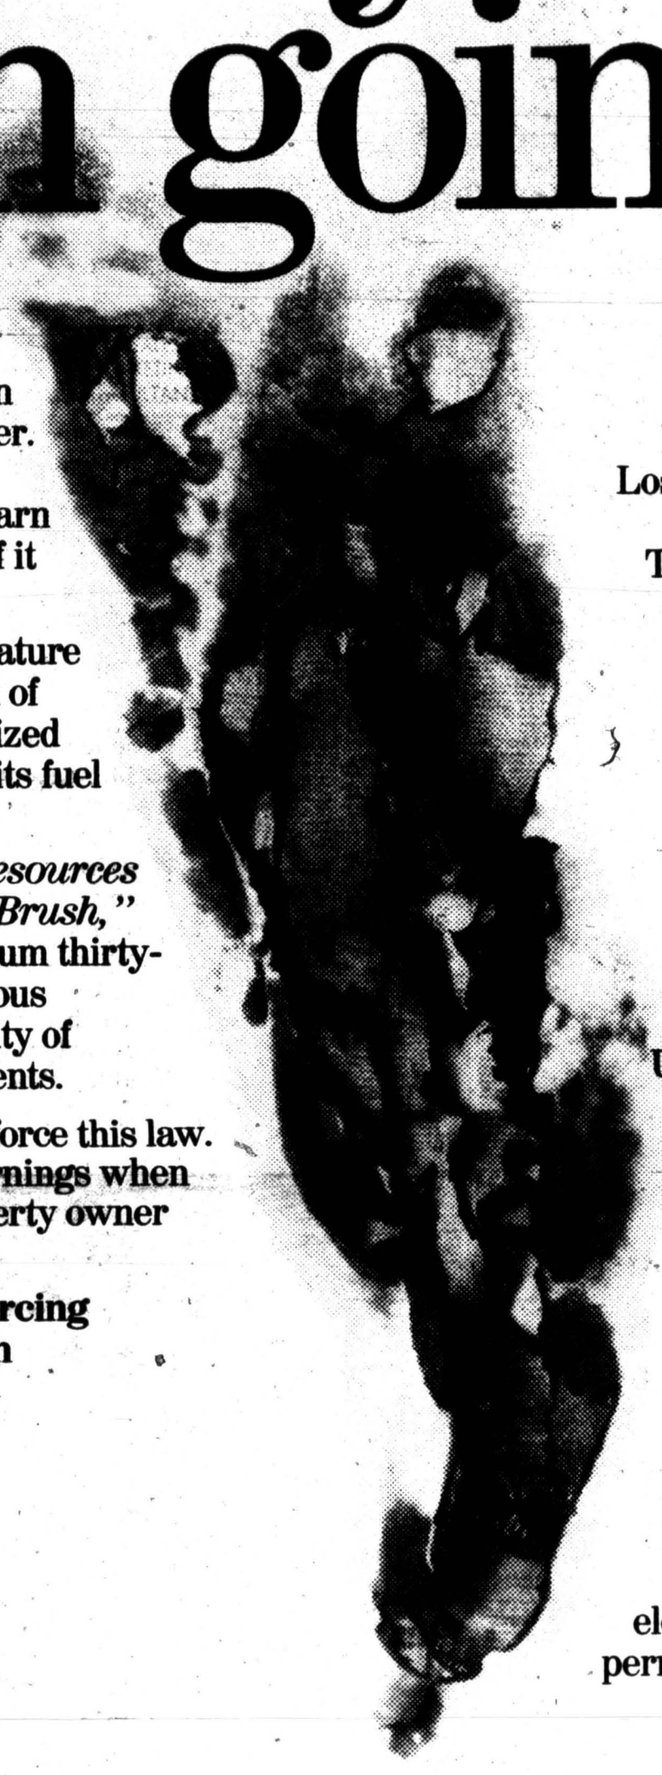
How to keep Monterey County from going up in smoke.



There is no minimizing the disaster of fire in Pebble Beach. Or anywhere else, for that matter. The loss of property, environment and human spirit is both somber and tragic. But we can learn from this nightmare. And reduce the chance of it ever happening again.

Twenty-five years ago the California Legislature enacted a progressive law to diminish the risk of destruction from wildfire. Legislators recognized that the best way to prevent a fire is to cut off its fuel supply before the first spark.

Bill Number 4291, known as the "Public Resources Code for Minimum Statewide Clearance of Brush," mandates that property owners keep a minimum thirty-foot radius around their homes free of hazardous brush. This law also delegates the responsibility of enforcement to local city and county governments.

A few enlightened communities actively enforce this law. They have fire hazard patrols. They issue warnings when violations are found. They clear brush at property owner expense when warnings are ignored.

But too many communities are not enforcing this law. The reason most frequently given is a lack of manpower and equipment.

Fire Prevention is a Community Effort.

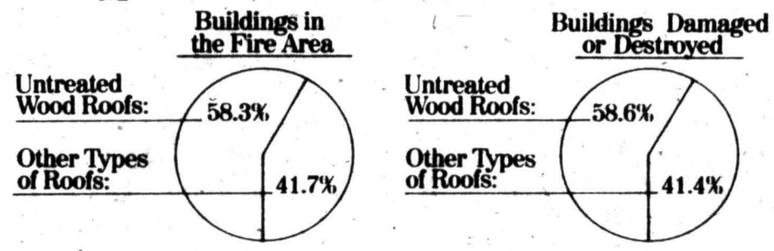
You can begin fighting fire before it ever begins by making sure you and others obey fire prevention laws. If these laws had been obeyed in the Morse Botanical Reserve, the Pebble Beach fire would never have started. If the state's brush clearance law had been enforced, fire would not have spread as it did.

But effective fire prevention means more than obeying the law.

Just as communities often have a neighborhood crime watch program, you can start a neighborhood fire watch. It's as simple as asking nearby residents to clear brush which violates California code. If they refuse, then notify local officials.
Ignoring the situation could cost you your home.

Wildfire Isn't Selective.

In fact, it destroys everything in its path. According to Los Angeles Fire Department statistics, the 1961 Bel Air disaster paid little heed to building materials. The percentage of roof types on damaged or destroyed buildings was nearly identical to the percentages of roof types found in the fire area:



Twenty years after Bel Air, the Atlas Peak inferno again demonstrated that roofing material was not the primary culprit. According to the Lake Napa Ranger Unit of the California Division of Forestry, lack of brush clearance was the single most damaging factor. Of 111 homes where brush had not been cleared, 86 percent were damaged or destroyed. Of an equal number of homes with proper brush clearance, 95 percent were saved. These figures clearly show that roofing material is not the major element in the spread of wildfire. Factors such as overgrown brush and fallen pine needles are far more critical.

You Can Still Have Red Cedar's Natural Beauty when UL-Tested Fire Retardancy Is Required.

If you are building a new home or reroofing in an area requiring a Class C roof or better, insist on the rustic elegance and peace of mind offered by pressure treated, permanently fire retardant red cedar shakes and shingles produced by members of the Red Cedar Shingle & Handsplit Shake Bureau. Like less attractive asphalt and composition roofs, they meet or exceed Class C fire codes when installed to manufacturer's specification. While most roofing materials undergo three tests, pressure treated red cedar shakes and shingles produced by Bureau members undergo nine in accordance with UL-790 standards. No other cedar shakes and shingles or spray treatments have passed this complete Underwriters Laboratories test.

But there is only one way to know you're getting full, lasting protection from a new cedar roof. And that's to insist on the fire-retardant label from members of the Red Cedar Shingle & Handsplit Shake Bureau.

As tragic as recent losses have been, "Remember Pebble Beach" should become the rallying cry for a safer Monterey County. With the help of you, your neighbors and public officials, May 31st need never happen again. □

THE FORMER location of The Cookie Place has been purchased by the nationwide cookie bakery store, Mrs. Field's Cookies. The Carmel Planning Commission will confront some difficult questions on maintaining Carmel's character when it reviews the company's remodel plans and use permit application on July 22. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Can Mrs. Field's build a name in city of Carmel?

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission may not consider itself Juliet's counterpart but it will be asking her famous question when Mrs. Field's use permit and shop design application returns for consideration July 22.

"What's in a name?" is just one of the questions that will confront the commission about the application it continued July 8.

The commission will decide if the name Mrs. Field's Cookies, the name of a major chain of cookie shops, is detrimental to Carmel's unique character. It will decide that question while discussing whether the new shop and sign design fits in with the village atmosphere.

The commission can only recommend that the city business licensing board not approve the name.

The international company, with 300 shops worldwide, applied for a location on Ocean Avenue and immediately ran into a debate as the commission tried to sift through the issues.

Mrs. Field's Cookies purchased The Cookie Place, a local cookie bakery, on the south side of Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Mission streets and submitted plans for remodeling the interior and exterior of the now-vacant shop.

The well-known and successful Mrs. Field's Cookies company, which is known for its many varieties of chocolate chip cookies, makes its products on-site and from scratch. There is an outlet located in Macy's in Del Monte Shopping Center.

The commission, after watching slides of other Mrs. Field's locations, found that the remodel plans should be toned down and resubmitted. The plans included larger windows, a red script lettered sign with the Mrs. Field's company logo and a small expansion of interior space.

Joe Teddy, a building consultant representing the company, said the plans will be resubmitted with the present shop frontage repainted a lighter color, no expansion of the interior space and minus the interior tiles with the company logo.

The sign will be redesigned with block letters and the word "Cookies" eliminated, but the name will stay, he said.

The company is proud of the name Mrs. Field's because it feels it is synonymous with a first-rate product, Teddy said.

"It's not just for Mrs. Field's, it's for the city. People see the name and recognize the quality. We're just trying to get that across. We are certainly the most prestigious cookie store in the world.," Teddy said in an interview later with The Carmel Pine Cone.

He added that the name, Mrs. Field's, "says that here in the village you can get a quality cookie. Are we to keep submitting until they decide they like a name? What if we called it McDonald's Cookies — or Burger King Cookies?"

Teddy said that Mrs. Field's company views each store as special.

"We have 300 unique shops," he said.

"The Cookie Place didn't bring anything to the village. We think the notability of our product and company brings something to Carmel," Teddy said.

CLASSIFIED AS a specialty bakery because it offers only cookies, Mrs. Field's and its predecessor, The Cookie Place, are not permitted in the central commercial zone. Only full-line bakeries are permitted. (The Carmel Pine Cone erred two weeks ago when it printed that specialty bakeries are permitted in that zone.)

However, since The Cookie Place existed before the code change it was allowed to stay and any cookie bakery which runs the same kind of operation can replace it.

It is legally designated a "non-conforming use" because it does not conform to code.

Non-conforming uses can continue in business but must meet certain requirements. One of the main requirements is that it cannot expand or increase the business in any way that makes it comply even less with the code. In other words, it cannot increase its non-conformity with the code.

That increase can be through a physical expansion, a change in operation or in concept.

The code includes the directives of the general plan as well as the ordinances. In addition, there are special conditions that new businesses on Ocean Avenue must meet to obtain a use permit and no longer be considered a non-conforming use.

Listed in the staff report, those include:

• It contributes to maintaining the "village atmosphere" of Carmel. That includes the size of the business.

• It will contribute to the unique character of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the qualities that provide the community a sense of identity.

• "That approval would not result in an excessive number of establishments selling food products on Ocean Avenue, and that approval would not set a precedent for the approval of other similar uses which cumulatively would adversely affect the character of Ocean Avenue."

By adhering to those special conditions — called "findings" because the commission must find that the business complies with them — Planning Director Diane White said Carmel "won't get the same storefront as Los Angeles or San Francisco."

Because The Cookie Place sold similar goods as Mrs. Field's — cookies and beverages — the new business could sell the same kind of merchandise but could not increase the non-conformity in any way.

Mrs. Field's, according to the staff report, increases the non-conformity of a specialized bakery by being a chain operation, which The Cookie Place was not.

The Cookie Place was "unique to Carmel" but Mrs. Field's, in both the name and physical design of the store, is a nationwide chain. That increases the non-conformity because it violates codes that The Cookie Place complied with.

Staff recommended that to reduce the non-conformity the store be redesigned to be more in keeping with Carmel's character and that another name, unique to the city, be used for the business.

The commission, however, was not ready to tackle those points and asked for a resubmittal of the design and more clarification of the non-conformity problem before making a decision.

The last point, excessive number of food places on Ocean Avenue, also briefly became an issue.

"I am becoming increasingly angry at the number of people walking up and down Ocean Avenue with cookies and oozing pastries," Commissioner Carla Ramsey said.

However, the commission could not insist that Mrs. Field's clean up storefront sidewalks as ice cream parlors do since there is no other bakery or eating place with such a condition. Ice cream parlors have a special provision in the code that requires them to conduct such a clean-up service.

Meeting to discuss plans for Big Sur facility set

MONTEREY COUNTY Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman will head a public meeting to discuss the site plan and architectural theme of the proposed Big Sur Multi-Agency Facility on July 20, at the Big Sur Grange Hall.

The meeting, to be held under the auspices of the Big Sur Coast Advisory Committee to the County Planning Commission, will begin at 7 p.m.

The Big Sur Multi-Agency Facility is to be located one-quarter mile south of Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, where Caltrans and U.S. Forest Service offices are currently located. The new complex will house the USDA Forest Service, California Department of Transportation, and the California Parks and Recreation Department. Other uses for the facility include visitor information, public contact, communications, administrative offices, wilderness trailhead use, parking, employee housing, workshops and storage for highway maintenance, fire prevention and suppression, and maintenance of equestrian stock.

"The new facility, properly designed, will be a good example of inter-governmental cooperation" said Strasser Kauffman. "It is imperative that the local community be involved in that design to the fullest, so that the final product fits into the sensitive and scenic surroundings of Big Sur."

Barracuda swimmers take seventh place

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Barracudas swim team, even though underrepresented, nevertheless placed seventh among 35 teams at a recent swim meet.

According to coach Mike Bettencourt the team scored most of its points in the 9-10 and 11-12 age groups at the Benicia Blue Dolphins Open.

Bettencourt also added that the team is in the midst of its annual Waterama, its most important fund-raiser of the year. Team members take pledges for the number of laps they swim (maximum 200 in two hours). Members are currently looking for sponsors.

Team members are:

Application period opens for November election

By DAVID LELAND

SCHOOL AND special districts peninsulawide opened the nomination period for candidates this week, with election hopefuls having until 5 p.m. Aug. 7 to apply to the county for the Nov. 3 ballot, according to Betty Bloomer, registrar of voters.

Locally, the Carmel Unified School District has four openings for board member, all four-year terms.

Traditionally only two or three posts are up for re-election at a single time, but school board member Don Wiesner has been filling out the vacancy created by the resignation of former board member Doyle Clayton.

The school board is the policy-making body for the district and meets bi-monthly, according to Adele Schauman, CUSD administrative assistant.

Special districts on the peninsula with vacant seats include: Monterey Peninsula Water Management, Carmel Valley Fire Protection, Carmel Sanitary and Pebble Beach Community Services.

The only stipulation in running for a school board or special district seat, according to Bloomer, is you must be registered to vote in that jurisdiction.

For example, in order to seek a place on the Carmel Valley Fire Protection board you would have to reside in Carmel Valley.

There are no filing fees for the applications, which can be picked up at the county registrar of voters at 201 Main St. in Salinas.

Each special district also has a secretary empowered by the county to accept applications.

Also, in order to serve on a special district, the applicant must circulate a nominating paper and get between 10 and 20 signatures in order to qualify for the Nov. 3 ballot.

Controversial development in Carmel Meadows OK'd

By DAVID LELAND

GOING AGAINST the wishes of the county planning department and reversing itself from a previous decision, the Monterey County Minor Subdivision Committee last week approved a controversial project slated to be built on property abutting Carmel Meadows.

The Stephen Williams project, which has been fought for nearly a year by several families who own adjoining land, will divide one 5.28-acre lot into two smaller parcels. Each of those will permit construction of one house.

Plans for two houses and a guest cottage were modified by the subcommittee, with the guest cottage idea being tossed out.

The subdivision committee narrowly adopted (4-2, with an abstention) a resolution of intention to approve the project. Opposing the project was the planning department and Planning Commissioner Jo Stallard. Favoring it were representatives from county public works, health, flood control and the fire warden's office. Abstaining was a representative from the county building department.

The committee will hold a hearing at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, July 24 in the courthouse in Salinas, to formally adopt findings from the planning staff.

While that hearing is open to the public, it will be closed to public testimony.

County planner Nick Chiulos, who voted against the planned building, said he still isn't satisfied that the project remains in conformance with the Carmel Area Land Use Plan.

That 1979 plan denotes what land can be built on and developed in the Carmel area, plus what restrictions will be placed on that building.

"There were still significant doubts in my mind regarding the project," Chiulos said. "That's also the (planning) department's position."

Several Carmel Meadows residents have hired attorney Tom Jamison to argue their point, which centers mainly on the land use plan.

While the land use plan does allot three units for that property, there are no density findings in that plan, according to Jamison.

"The land use policy mentions the Williams property, it doesn't determine the results," Jamison told the subdivision committee.

And, while Jamison and the Carmel Meadow residents lost this round in the subcommittee, it appears almost certain they will appeal.

"We've only just begun to fight," said Gail Twilegar, who along with two other residents have hired Jamison at $175 an hour. "When we appeal to the board of supervisors we start all over again."

In order to file an appeal, the residents must wait until the July 23 decision is signed and mailed. They then have 10 days in which to file.

Appeals are no stranger to the Williams project. Last November, representatives of the Williams family appealed a decision denying a building permit by the same subdivision committee that just approved plans.

At that time the board of supervisors referred the decision back to the subcommittee, citing that there was new evidence to be presented. The board said it could not hear that information before the subcommittee.

THE RESIDENTS cite several fears if building goes through as planned. Among these are that the new building will be too close to their homes, it will destroy parts of the viewshed and wreak havoc with parts of the environment.

"All they (subcommittee) care about is the five acres," an angry Twilegar said after the vote. "The fact is that it's (driveway) 5 feet from our living room doesn't bother them."

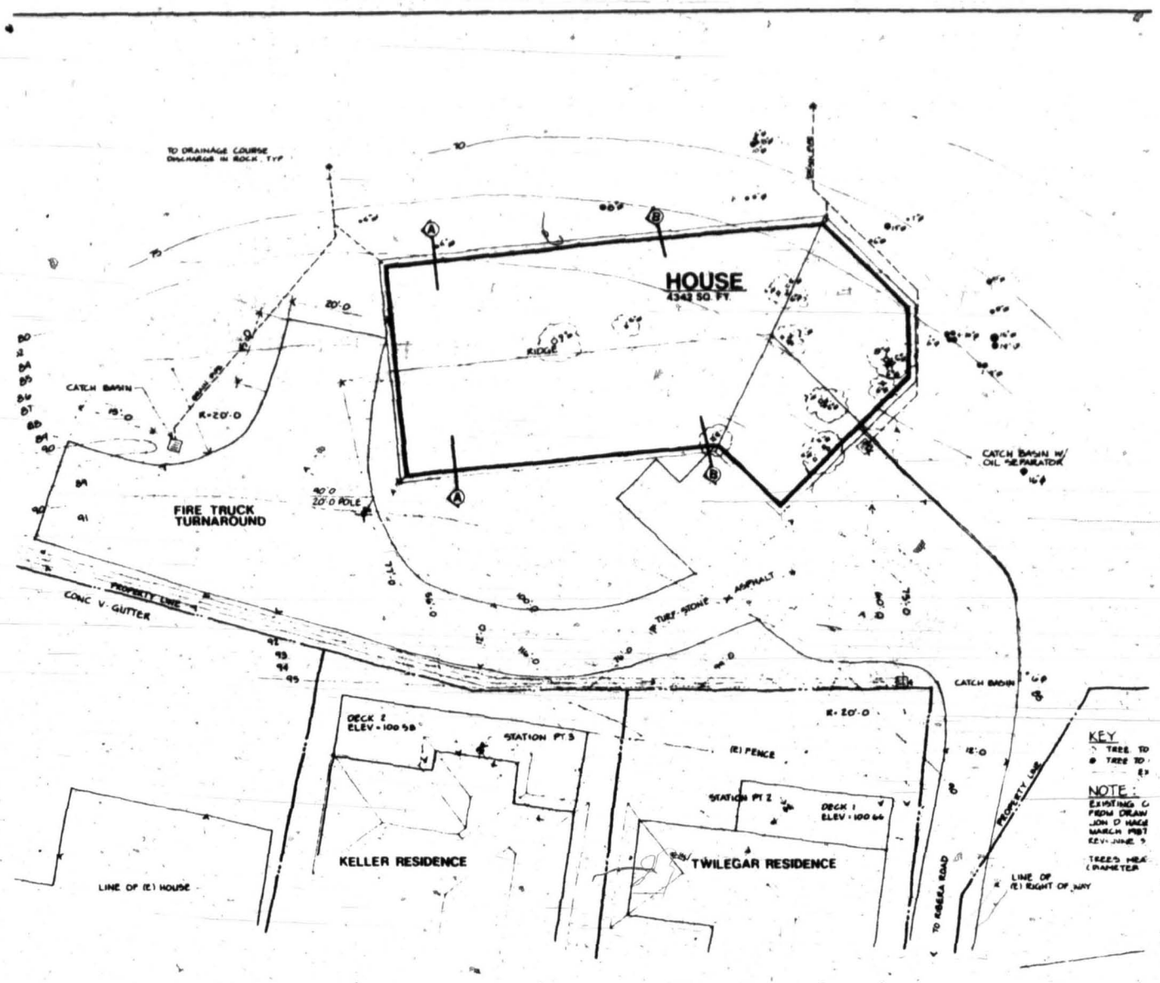
Providing additional environmental information to the subcommittee was Michael Groves, of EMC Planning Inc. in Monterey.

Groves said his studies show that storm runoff will be concentrated and will not break down as it spills into the Carmel River.

He also said the proposed building will cause the removal of at least 18 oak trees.

But perhaps the biggest gripe of Carmel Meadows homeowners fighting the proposed plans is that the Williams family plans to sell the land after they secure approval to build.

"There's a lot of emotion behind this that would be different," Twilegar said. "But they're developers from Sacramento."



BORDERED ON the north by the state-owned Odello West artichoke fields and on the south by the Carmel Meadows, the Williams property has heated up into an all-out land use battle. Last week a county subcommittee approved plans for building on that property.

Bach to the future

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood (above) revealed a plaque dedicated to Carmel Bach Festival founders Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous at the opening festivities of the 50th festival. In background stand Sandor Salgo (center), festival music director and conductor, and Mr. and Mrs. Bach (Ann Welchner and Alan Brenner), who led a procession that included festival banners and the Church of the Wayfarer youth choir. At left Mrs. Bach (who is also director of the choir), leads the youth choir (representing the Bach children), through the crowds at Sunset Center, where Salgo conducted a free concert and where festival organizers provided free food and refreshments. Carmel man takes a journey back in history

By HOLLY McFARLAND

HIS HOME was a floating piece of history for a year where he accompanied dignitaries, saw heads of state such as President Harry Truman, and held a private audience with Pope Pius XII.

And for former Marine Corps guard and Carmel resident Rolf Stolesen, stepping aboard the USS Missouri during a tour last week while it anchored in Monterey Bay was like going back to military life 40 years ago.

After relying on aging newspaper clippings, memorabilia and contacts with Marine Corps friends, Stolesen's recollections became reality when "Big Mo" set anchor in the bay offering limited public viewing last week.

"Life on board the USS Missouri was undoubtedly the most exciting year of my life," said Stolesen, who served a one-year stint in 1946 during her famous "Goodwill Tour."

"It has been over 40 years that I walked off that ship and it is indeed a nostalgic moment to be able to come back on," he said. "The Marines on the ship's detachment was a prestigious group and we accompanied the executive officers."

While the US battleship survived World War II, including a direct attack from kamikazi planes, Stolesen's year of service aboard her was a peaceful one.

"Shortly after Gen. Douglas MacArthur received Japan's unconditional surrender which marked the end of war on Sept. of 1945, I came on board for the goodwill tour," Stolesen said.

It was an impressionable time for the former Marine guard who was only 17 years old and yet was able to see the full spectrum of countries in the Mideast, including Turkey, Greece, Naples, Algeria, Tangier, and finally the famous southern point of Gibraltar.

"Every country we visited was exciting because I was only a year out of high school, so everything I read about in geography books I was actually seeing," he said.

In the fog-shrouded morning last Wednesday, Stolesen was awestruck viewing the battleship from a distance in a launch as it approached the big ship, much the same way he boarded while on duty years ago.

"We used to fight the swells much the same way we are doing aboard this small ship, only once we approached 'Big Mo' we would have to swim aboard," said Stolesen. "I haven't felt this nostalgic in years."

Once aboard, the Carmelite donned a USS Missouri cap, chatted with sailors and posed for television cameras and reporters.

"One dramatic moment aboard the ship was when a twin 5-inch gun mount went off in the wrong direction in my face and I was the only one hurt because everyone else had helmets on," Stolesen recalled. "To this day I wear dark glasses but my sight is completely restored."

While the battleship spent 30 years in mothballs before it was recommissioned in San Francisco, much of the work was spent re-arming her with Tomahawk cruise missiles and Phalanx anti-aircraft guns. The price tag for that hefty facelift was about $475 million.

But the changes to Stolesen were basically cosmetic ones: "The physical dimensions have remained the same, there are about 10 acres of deck space or about 41,000 feet here on these decks."

It took a private tour through the deepest areas of the ship, including a view of the cafeteria, Marine quarters, store, and finally bunk areas before Stolesen's curiosity was satisfied.

He sat in one of the bunk areas and marveled at the extra space.

"We were stacked six high, but now with the computers on board about 1,000 sailors have been eliminated from the crew," he said.

Despite the regimen, everyday life aboard the USS Missouri had its comical adventures for the former Marine.

"We used to open the ventilators and store canned turkey breasts and sodas when we were out to sea because we were only supposed to eat what was on the menu," Stolesen said.

"When they finally renovated the ship they found boxes of comic books, magazine materials and other debris that some of us had stored," he continued.

The 16-inch guns loomed above Stolsen on deck much the same way when he was in uniform. As he moved deliberately from deck to deck he recalled several key moments of his shipboard life.

"I remember when the ship carried the body of Turkish ambassador Mehmet Numir Ertegun who died in the United States," Stolesen recalled. "I was a guard for Adm. Henry Hewitt, the commanding officer of the ship at the time the ship made its first stop in Turkey."

One of the crucial times aboard the Big Mo was an actual private audience Stolesen was allowed with Pope Pius the XII and two other officers.

"The Pope asked me if I was a Catholic and I told him I was a Norwegian and a Protestant and he finally laughed and gave me his picture," Stolesen said.

After traveling the Mideast, the goodwill tour finally ended with a return to New York, a tour of the East Coast, capped off with a trip to the Caribbean.

Stolesen remained in the Marine Corps for another two years after his stint aboard the USS Missouri. Once discharged from the Marines he served another six years in the Navy Reserve.

After a well-served military life, Stolesen worked in the private sector as a lumber broker and now actively retired, the Carmelite owns two automotive stores. He is also part owner of the former restaurant "Cafe Central" at The Crossroads in Carmel.

"I plan on shutting down the restaurant, renaming it 'Viva Cancun' while remodeling it to reopen the first part of October," Stolesen said.

Another joint business venture involved the sale of Mission Ranch to Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood for $5 million last year.

When asked if he ever missed Marine Corps life, Stolesen was quick to reply: "I still leave ample time to be aboard my 33-foot fishing boat Patina III because I will always have a yearning to be near the sea."

DOLLARS & SENSE

By Anthony Piazza & Marshall Bloom

Patience The great cure-all

"WHAT A lousy investment! In three months I've lost $3,000."

Here we were, strolling down Lighthouse Avenue, enjoying the sights of Pacific Grove's downtown renaissance, when who should verbally accost us but Louie Layman.

"Why, hello Louie," we said in unison. We always speak to our clients in unison. "Please don't shout Louie. People are staring. Besides, you haven't lost $3,000."

"Sure I have. I got my statement today and it shows my account is worth $47,000. I gave you guys $50,000. I've lost $3,000."

You should know something about Louie Layman. Louie is an ultra conservative investor. At times you might not consider him an investor at all. You might consider him a saver only. After all, an investor by definition has to understand risk-reward: you take a little risk and you may get a little reward; you take no risk and you're entitled to no reward at all.

"Wait a minute, Louie. Let's back up to how you came to invest that $50,000. You said you wanted a double-digit return on your money but you weren't interested in stocks. After looking at numerous alternatives and after determining that you were able to leave the money untouched for several years, we suggested that a current double-digit return was obtainable through a mutual fund, a professionally managed diversified portfolio of high-yielding corporate bonds."

"Junk!"

"That's correct. Low-grade corporate bonds have been nicknamed junk bonds. Their yield is high because their credit-rating is not the highest. But remember, we looked at the track record of these mutual funds over several years and you were satisfied with the expertise of the management skills thus far."

"I still lost $3,000."

"Louie, didn't we also point out that your share values would fluctuate from time to time, going up when interest rates fell and going down when interest rates rose?'

"I guess so."

"You know so. Well, rates have risen in the past few months and your share values show a paper loss."

"What's the diff?"

"A paper loss can be reversed, a real loss can't, except by a brand-new investment. But you're forgetting something else here. We told you that a wonderful thing happens when your fund's share price is lower than what you originally paid."

"What's that?"

"Dollar cost averaging. We agreed you didn't need the dividends in cash, and we pointed out that nothing is nicer than reinvesting high dividends at a lower share price than you originally paid. Because when interest rates go down again, you'll see appreciation in all those cheaper shares at a greater rate than those you originally purchased. That's dollar cost averaging coupled with reinvestment of dividends. Give it time to work out. Be patient. Stay the course."

Louie was silent for a moment.

"What does it cost me to do this, reinvest and average and all that stuff?"

"In the fund we carefully selected for you, absolutely nothing."

Okay, boys. I'm calm now. I'm slowly learning a new way of looking at things."

"What's that?"

"Being an investor means having a larger perspective of things."

"Bravo, Louie."

ARREST YOUTHS FOR SHOPLIFTING

The question of what to do with juvenile delinquents after bed time added one or two more grey hairs to Chief of Police Bob Norton's black thatch Wednesday night, when a little quick thinking in the police department brought a couple of young San Francisco shoplifters into the toils of the law and put an end to a promising "crime wave." A bushel basketful of small articles removed from Carmel shops during the last week was recovered, but Bob didn't know what to do with the boys. Carmel has no jail. Monterey jail politely declined to accept them, and besides it would have been illegal to take them there without making certain that they would have a cell to themselves, away from the contaminating presence of adult offenders.

BACH FESTIVAL BACKGROUND

In the spring of 1958, the Bach Festival was incorporated. Miss Dene Denny, one of the two founders of the festival, served as first president with an advisory board of 30 members. Since the incorporation, the Bach Festival board of directors has handled festival management and production.

Twenty-fifth anniversary president of the festival's board of directors is Peter Ferrante, also a key figure of past Bach Festivals.

As an attorney, his direct association with the festival began 15 years ago. At that time Miss Denny and the other founder of the festival, Miss Hazel Watrous, first saw the need for incorporating the organization as a non-profit group in order to preserve the festival for the community and posterity. He donated his services as legal advisor from that time. The incorporation took place five years ago.

All contributions to the festival are now tax exempt. Mr. Ferrante stresses that the festival needs all the financial support it can get as ticket sales alone cannot cover the growing expenses of the event held principally in Sunset School Auditorium which has a limited seating capacity.

TOUR BUS OPERATORS THREATEN CARMEL BOYCOTT

After just one week's enforcement of Carmel's recently-adopted tour bus route and parking regulations, a large tour company and some disgruntled bus drivers are already threatening a Carmel boycott.

The regional manager of Discount Travel in Los Angeles claims the new regulations "could change the picture entirely" of the company's stops, and says the New York headquarters of his company is considering scratching Carmel from its tour schedule.

What was once a one and a half to two-hour shopping stop may now just be a drive-through, claims Perlow, whose company may or may not bring up to 5,000 tourists to Carmel this summer.

Discount Travel alone accounts for two to four tour buses each day. A tour bus generally seats 47 passengers, according to Perlow.

"It it's not that important to Carmel," says Perlow, "it's not that important to me."

SANITARY DISTRICT ROAD PROPOSAL CREATES A STIR

A plan to build an access road along the Carmel Youth Baseball field to connect Rio Road with the proposed new Carmel Sanitary District office has caused quite a stir.

The Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors will meet at 1:30 p.m. July 15 at city hall to discuss the plan.

The proposed street would intersect with Rio Road just west of Mission Fields Road. It would be constructed on property owned by the Carmel Mission between the residential-area fence line and the ball field fenced. After 570 feet of roadway, it would dead end into a parking lot for the new sanitary district office to be built south of the ball field backstop and north of the river.

Estimated cost of the road is about $55,000, which includes funds for land acquisition, road construction and a new, higher ball field fence, said sanitary district Manager Michael Zambory.

Although the permanent office site was selected two months ago, opposition to the proposed access road surfaced last week.

Opposition has been voiced by officials of the Carmel Mission, which owns the property, and a group of neighbors led by Mary Arnn.

Clary charm captures Carmel

A PREMIERE showing of the brilliant art work of Robert Clary began with a reception in his honor on Saturday afternoon in the New Masters Gallery in Carmel. Although he began painting seriously only 16 years ago and has sold paintings to many people, this is his first one-man show. His warmth and joy permeated the gallery as he greeted friends and art lovers alike.

His colorful paintings convey the forceful impact of everyday life — a street filled with people, a marketplace, a group of children, a bustling port village — all done in clear layered colors producing a brilliance, a contrast, a softness, with each person and object distinctly defined in exquisite detail. Each painting required months of concentrated effort.

His life, like his art, has been a mosaic patterned with people, places and experiences. He began singing in Paris nightclubs at the age of 12 (he was the youngest of 14 children), with his creative talent taking him to theater, recordings and motion pictures. His first record sold over a quarter of a million copies and brought him to the United States in 1949 to perform in nightclubs. Since then his television and movie career has spanned more than four decades.

Friends from Los Angeles (Mr. Clary's home) and many from the local area came to the New Masters reception — Mr. and Mrs. John Gardiner, Eva Gabor, Merv Griffin, Claudia Cowan (KMST-TV reporter), her mother and father the noted actress Barbara Rush and Warren Cowan, Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood, Sylvia Stewart, Palm Springs artist Stan Stokes and his wife, Linda, Phyllis Lewis, as well as Mr. Clary's wife Natalie and their children and grandchildren from the Los Angeles area.

It is easy to understand his appeal to fine art collectors. Kaye Ballard, George C. Scott, Jonathan Winters, Peter Marshall and Merv Griffin are only a few of the proud possessors of Robert Clary paintings. His exhibit will be at New Masters Gallery until July 25. They are open Monday to Saturday (except Thursdays).

RECEPTION GIVEN BY GOLF FOUNDATION

The Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation hosted a reception at the Beach Club acknowledging recipients of the 1987 proceeds from the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am Tournament. Attending were local and East Coast dignitaries and representatives of the 20 local organizations benefiting from the monies donated by the foundation.

Gateway Center, Meals on Wheels, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, Pro-Am Youth Fund, United Way, Crisis Pregnancy Center, Child Advocates of California, Planned Parenthood were some of the groups supported by foundation proceeds.

Most organizations received checks prior to the reception so this was strictly a social gathering. However, Mr. William Borland president of the foundation board of directors, did take the microphone briefly to present the last few checks. Suddenly, he discovered there was a mix-up in the envelopes and requested a recall. While the checks were being returned someone nearby remarked, "I hope he didn't mix up the checks that went to the Crisis Pregnancy Center and Planned Parenthood." The envelopes were exchanged and the party continued.

Foundation board members Harry and Nathaniel Crosby were unable to attend. Nathaniel was playing golf in England and Harry had a prior commitment. Board members seen at the lavish buffet table were Borland, Lou Russo, vice president, John Smart (AT&T executive from New Jersey), Tom Oliver (president of the Pebble Beach Co.), Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood. Pro-Am board members attending were Joe LoManto, Carol Rissel and Dick Searle (Russo is president). Local dignitaries were Pacific Grove Mayor Morris Fisher, Marina Mayor George J. Takahashi, Monterey Mayor Dan Albert and Eastwood.

TOBIN KELLER AT SITE 311 GALLERY

Chris Grimes, owner of Site 311 Fine Arts Gallery, focuses on finding exciting young artists. He told me, "Young California artists are on the cutting edge of the national art pulse. We find our gallery is reaching far beyond the Monterey Peninsula and stimulatimg interest in the San Francisco and Los Angeles areas through architects, interior designers, and corporations seeking contemporary fine art. I feel that I bring something vital to the community and it is exciting to me."

Artist Tobin Keller of Santa Cruz is the latest discovery. Last weekend a reception was given by Mr. Grimes and Matthew Foley, associate director of Site 311 to introduce him and his charcoal drawings.

More than 100 people attended the reception including the director of the Santa Cruz Museum and the president of the musuem board. The exhibit will be on view through Aug. 21.

News notes:

Birth mothers group meets every month

A BIRTH mothers support group meets once a month at the Childrens Services Center in Monterey.

Birth mothers are women who have given their children up for adoption; the group allows these women to share their feelings with others, according to Terri Livingston, who has been a member of the year-old group.

"There are a lot of women out there...and there's a lot of pain involved," she said. "This gives them a chance to talk about it. We're not a search group, but we have information on it."

The support group meets at 7 p.m. on the last Wednesday of each month at the center at 484 Lighthouse in New Monterey. More information can be obtained by calling either Carol Bishop or Gayle Ward at Childrens Services Center of Monterey County, 649-3033.

Cachagua area plan needs participation by area residents

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors has appointed a Citizens Advisory Committee to help in developing an area plan for Cachagua, but citizen input is needed.

Public meetings of the committee are held regularly in Cachagua. Residents interested in participating are asked to sign a mailing list at the meetings or by writing directly to:

Cachagua Area Plan Mailing List
Monterey County Planning Department

PO Box 1208
Salinas, CA 93902.

Public participation is encouraged at these meetings to insure that property owners and residents have their concerns reflected in the Cachagua Area Plan that is to be developed, according to Joel Panzer, county planner.

For more information contact Panzer at 422-9018.

Cholesterol high in adult Americans

More than 50 percent of adult Americans have blood cholesterol levels above 200 milligrams per deciliter, a level at which the risk of coronary heart disease begins to rise sharply, says the American Heart Association.

High blood pressure common in U.S.

According to recent American Heart Association estimates, in U.S. adults aged 18-74, 33 percent of white males, 38 percent of black males, 25 percent of white females and 39 percent of black females have high blood pressure.

STATE FAIR ANNOUNCES LOCAL WINNERS OF ART COMPETITION

The 1987 California State Fair has announced the winners of its annual California Works Competition. Instituted in 1947, the juried art show will present the 152 winning paintings, drawings, prints, sculptures, and photographs in the popular California Works Building during the run of the fair, Aug. 21 through Sept. 7, Labor Day, in Sacramento.

This year's competition experienced an increase in the number of entries with 1,523 and awarded 109 Awards of Merit, 40 Awards of Excellence, and the three coveted Juror's Awards. The contest is divided into 14 classes from Oil and Acrylic Paintings, Drawings, and Prints to Sculptures, Fiberwork, Mixed Media, and Photography.

Each year, the panel of judges select the three most outstanding works in the competition representing two-dimensional art, three-dimensional art, and photography. Known as the Juror's Awards, the recipients this year include:

Gerald Richman of Carmel Highlands, who received an Award of Award of Merit in the Two-Dimensional Works/Painting-Oil Division.

ECONOMIST TO SPEAK AT FREE SEMINAR

Patricia A. Qualls and Betsy G. Thomson, financial consultants in Carmel, invite the public to their annual "Adam Smith Birthday Seminar" at 10 a.m ., Saturday, July 18 at the Pebble Beach Room at The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

This year's featured guest will be Econimist Dr. Robert Goodman. The morning's topic will be "The Emerging Economic Climate." Goodman is senior vice president and economist of J. & W. Seligman & Co. Inc., a New York-based investment advisor. The firm provides investment management and advisory services to institutions, individuals and the Seligman Group of Investment Companies. The aggregate assets under management are in excess of 8 billion dollars.

Goodman forecasts the general outlook for the nation's economy and business, interprets changes in key economic indicators, and will brief the audience on emerging economic trends to help develop investment strategy.

"Lazy fare" consisting of danish and coffee will be served prior to the meeting and the gate fee is waived. The seminar is free to the public. Reservations can be made by calling 625-1300.

QUALITY CHILD CARE/WORK FORCE TOPIC OF JULY 21 PANEL

"Quality Child Care and Its Effect on The Work Force (Particularly Working Women)" will be the topic of discussion when the Professional Women's Network holds its next meeting at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday, July 21, in the Community Room of the Crossroads (Rio Road at Highway 1).

The slate of panelists includes Wendy Banks, early childhood education coordinator for the Carmel Unified School District's newly licensed pre-school at Carmelo School; Walli Poirier, a licensed day care provider who has cared for infants and young children in her Monterey home for nearly 25 years; and Barbara Verba, GAIN (Greater Avenues for Independence) Program Services Analyst who will explain the absolute necessity of child care in this rehabilitation program for welfare mothers.

The discussion will cover the specifics of funding and licensing child care for pre-school age children, as well as the financial and psychological ramifications quality care has on working women, and society as a whole.

The meeting is open to all women interested in expanding their businesses and sharing ideas with other women. There will be no charge for members; however, non-members will be charged $5 at the door, applicable toward membership that evening. For further information, please call the network office at 646-0796.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
CITY COUNCIL
ORDINANCE NO. 87-15
AN ORDINANCE AMENDING CHAPTER 17.15 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE FOR PROPERTY TO BE USED AS SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING LOCATED AT THE NORTHWEST CORNER OF DOLORES AND FIFTH AVENUES (BLOCK 52, LOTS 11-19)

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. PURPOSE. It is the purpose and intent of this ordinance to adopt a specific plan for the property described herein in conformance with Article 8 of Chapter 3 of Division 1 of Title 7 of the Government Code of the State of California.

Section Two. PROVISIONS OF THE SPECIFIC PLAN. The following section of Chapter 17.15 of the Municipal Code are amended as follows:

1715.020 SPECIFIC PLAN FOR DOLORES STREET SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING.

The provisions set forth in this specific plan shall apply only to the Dolores Street Senior Citizen Housing defined as Block 52, Lots 11 through 19.

A. GOALS FOR THE DOLORES STREET SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING SPECIFIC PLAN.

The following are set forth as the goals for the specific plan for senior citizen housing on Dolores Street:

1. Provide efficient and moderately priced housing units designed for the elderly and handicapped residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea.
2. Design structures which maintain a residential character through a variety in size, configuration, use of different wood material, trim color and roof pitch.
3. Develop a site design that minimizes views of second story structures from the street.
4. Develop a site design that maintains open space and existing trees.
5. Provide landscaping and pedestrian access through the site and connected to a public plaza at the corner of Dolores and Fifth.
6. Provide parking that is well integrated with the site and accessible to residents, and minimize the visual effect of parking pavement.
7. Provide private garden and patio space for each most of the living units.
8. Provide public parking in a subterranean structure which meets the parking needs of the community and is designed to be in scale with surrounding development.

B. PERMITTED USES.

The following uses are permitted in the specific plan:
1. Twenty-four (24) senior citizen housing units
2. Subterranean public parking.

C. DEVELOPMENT REGULATIONS

The land within the specific plan shall be developed in general conformance with the site plan prepared by Jacoubowsky, Hawkins Walker & Associates, Inc. (JHW) dated June 5, 1985, March 12, 1987 (Exhibit A). The following elements of the site design shall apply to future development on the sites:

1. Twenty-four (24) housing units: twenty-one (21) studio units of 500 square feet and three (3) one-bedroom units of 572 square feet.
2. Three structures as follows:
   a. Building A — Two stories with fourteen units; seven units on the ground floor and seven units on the second story.
   b. Building B — Two stories with nine units; five units on the ground floor and four units on the second story.
   c. Building C — One story with on unit on the ground floor.
3. Parking for four automobiles in one off-street surface parking area including one handicapped and thirty-seven (37) spaces in a subterranean garage.
4. Project Data as follows:

a. Building coverage
first floor units			6640
walkways, stairs			1431
community room, kitchen, laundry			850
	Subtotal		8927
second floor projections			696
b. Total building coverage	9,623	48% TOTAL
c. Additional site paving		1,604	8%
d. Landscaping area		4,048	20%

5. Building setbacks as follows:
   a. West property line — minimum of seven (7) feet at second floor.
   b. East property line — varies, minimum of seven (7) feet.
   c. North property line — varies, minimum of ten (10) feet.
   d. Souther property line — varies, minimum of twenty-five (25) feet.
6. Height — twenty-five feet above existing or finished grade as measured vertically between any point on the building and grade.

D. DESIGN REGULATIONS

The following regulations shall apply to the design of structures:

1. All buildings shall be designed in general conformance with the site plan prepared by Associates JHW Associates dated 12 March 1987 (Exhibit A).
2. All buildings shall be of wood siding and cement plaster with asphalt roof shingles. The material, color trim and roof pitch for each building shall be varied.
3. Final design of the structures shall be reviewed and approved by the Planning Commission for:
   a. Landscape plan — proposed landscaping showing all trees, shrubs and ground cover, total area of landscaped areas and a plant list of each species, the number of each and the container size.
   b. Lighting — location, height and size of yard exterior building and parking lighting; example of exterior lighting fixtures.
   c. Color and materials pallet — color chips of all materials including fascia and trim and samples of all materials including roof and walls.
   d. Design and location of the parking garage exhaust system.

E. VEGETATION

No trees shall be removed without prior approval by the City Forestry Commission.

F. EXCEPTIONS

Exceptions to the requirements specified in subparagraph C through E may only be approved when the Design Review Board finds that the exception better meets the objectives of the specific plan.

G. APPLICABILITY OF REGULATIONS

If an issue or condition occurs that is not sufficiently addressed by the specific plan, those regulations of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code that are most applicable to the issue or condition shall apply.

Section Three. VIOLATIONS. Any person, firm or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employee or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction. Any part of any building erected contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a pulic nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action ofr the abatement or removal thereof. Should any person, firm or corporation violate the ferms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other actions shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

Section Four. SEVERABILITY. If any part of this ordinance is found unenforceable, such findings shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Five. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordinance shall take effect thirty (30) days after final adoption of this ordinance.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 7th day of July 1987, by the following roll call vote:

Russian, Italian productions screened

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will present Come and See and Seduced and Abandoned.

Come and See, to be shown Friday through Sunday, July 17-19, won the gold prize at the 1986 Moscow Film Festival. The 1985 film, directed by Elem Klimov, follows a young Russian boy across Nazi-occupied Soviet territory in 1943. It will be presented in Russian with subtitles.

The Wednesday, July 22 film offering is Seduced and Abandoned. Pietro Germi received top director's awards for this 1964 comedy. A comedy of honor from Sicily develops when the fiance of a woman's sister seduces her and is given two choices: marry the woman he has wronged or go to jail. It will be shown in Italian with subtitles.

Both films will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Morse Auditorium, Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren, Monterey. Admission is $3.50 general, $3 students and $2.75 for senior citizens. Information: 624-5216.

CARMEL POLICE REPORT

BY MARIUS CRISAN

Eye-opening ride

YOU GET into your car one sunny afternoon and drive to the grocery store. It's one of those lovely days that come along only once in awhile on the Central Coast. The sky is a bright blue. The air, sweet and fresh with that special sea tang. Flowers bloom brightly from every garden and jade colored hummingbirds abound. Even the raucous cries of the bluejays only add to the symphony of abundant nature which surrounds and permeate the senses. Everything radiates with a seldom seen beauty and clarity that brightens the darkest corners of your mind and invigorates the body. You are one with the world and all of its creations.

The only thing you may have overlooked was that stop sign at the last intersection. A police car, like a giant white albatross, swoops down behind you. The officer gives you the bright, dandelion-yellow copy of the ticket he just wrote. Your golden thoughts turn black.

By the time you get home, slam-dunk the groceries into the referigator and swear at the cat, the enchantment of a perfect day has disappeared like a magician's assistant. You throw yourself on the couch and think unkind thoughts: Where did this uniformed boob come from? Whe did he have to pick on me? Don't they have anything better to do? My insurance rates are going to go up! My wife/husband is going to kill me! Unprintable thoughts, etc.

Unfortunately, there is not much that anyone can do to return your idyllic mood and, at such times, even logic fails to penetrate the curtain of emotion that has just fallen on the incident. The reason that I used the above scenario is simple. For the average citizen, one of the few contacts with police on a regular basis is through the traffic stop. This is not a positive way of getting to know your police department or the people of which it consists. It provides a decidedly one dimensional view of what we do and why we do it. Films, television programs and other entertainment also fail to convey what real police work is all about. In fact, the only method of defining the job, lies in its experience.

THE RIDE-ALONG Program of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department provides a friendlier, not to mention cheaper, method of meeting the officers who serve the city. It also gives you, the citizen, a brief glimpse into our daily activities. The program is geared toward local residents who have interest in the department and its workings.

It consists of a four-hour session in a patrol car with the shift "watch commander." You will meet the officers under friendlier circumstances and accompany them on the various calls to which they respond. You are welcome to observe, first-hand, the methods of modern police work, We, all of us, will try to answer any questions you might have about the department and its procedures.

We sincerely believe that an informed person can make better decisions and any bit of information that we can pass on about ourselves or our operation is worth hundreds of misconceptions. We do not promise high speed chases or spectacular arrests, but on the other hand, the occupation cannot, by its nature, be made completely safe. Therefore, in order to take part in this program, some requirements must be met.

The first is that you be 15 years of age or older. The second, that you contact the Carmel Police Department between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday and make an appointment for a brief interview. You will be required to read and sign a release of liability agreement. If you are still a juvenile at the time of the Ride-Along, the waiver must be signed by parents or a guardian. You will also be given some reading material that will explain your observer status and provide some cautionary information. At the agreed upon time, you can bring the paperwork to the station and present it to the watch commander. He, in turn will provide you with an informative, four-hour introduction to the fine art of police work.

There are no guarantees that the Ride-Along will in any way alter your outlook toward the police; but, I am sure that you and we will both gain some understanding from the experience.

Suicide Prevention volunteers sought

The Suicide Prevention Center of Monterey County needs volunteers.

Persons who can listen, understand and give calm, competetent and gentle support to a distressed caller will receive training to become a member of a life-saving team.

After completing the training, which is a 40-hour class, volunteers are asked to donate a four-hour shift a week to the Suicide Prevention Center for at least six months.

The center is also in need of assistance with the community education and fundraising committees.

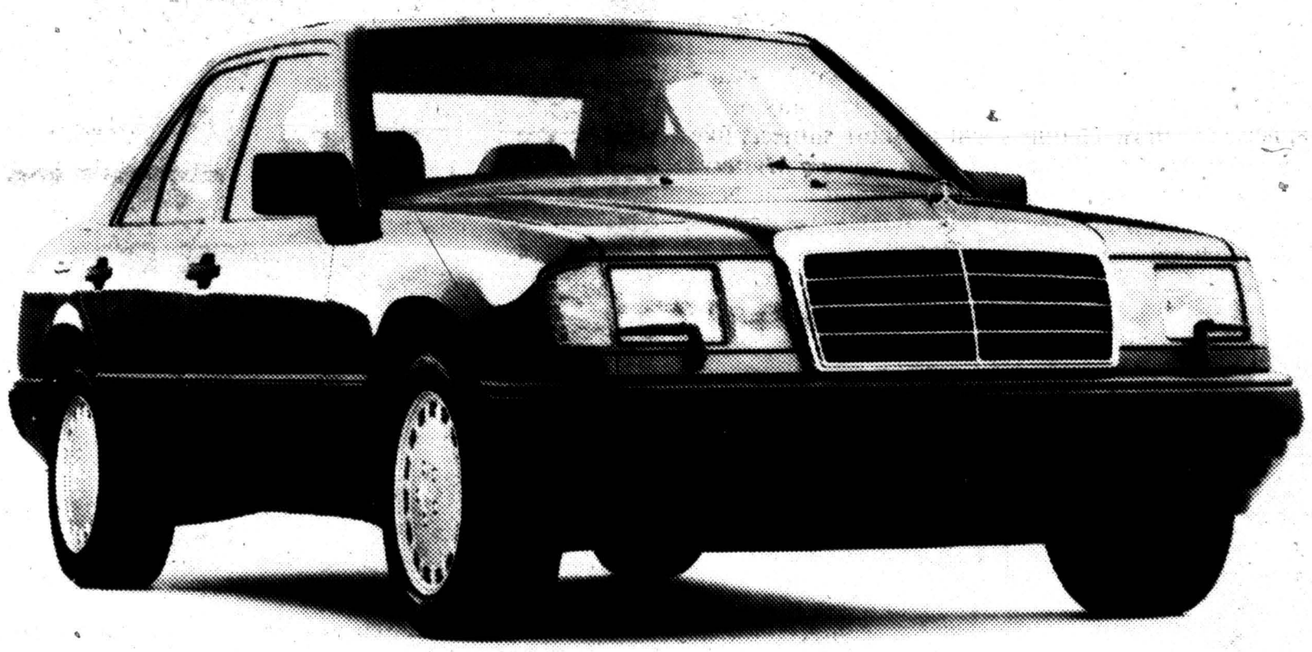
Interested individuals should call 375-6966. The next training begins July 20.

Amateur radio operators tested

Tests for amateur radio operators will be given at 9 a.m. on Saturday, July 18 at the Naval Postgraduate School's Spanagel Hall, Room 136.

Novice, technician, general, advanced and extra classes will be covered in the testing, according to an announcement from Stephen A. Grant of the NPS Amateur Radio Club.

Two identifications are required by applicants, plus a current license where appropriate and a copy thereof. A small fee will be charged. Walk-ins are welcome. For details, call 624-2564.



Believe it or not you can drive one home today.

You've probably heard you have to wait weeks for a Mercedes-Benz. Fact is, you could probably drive one home tonight.

Your local authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer has a special service. And here's how it works: come in to the showroom and pick the car you want (we have a good selection available). The rest is up to us.

If you qualify, we will give you the most generous possible trade-in allowance for your present car. Then we'll arrange for your financing and take care of all the details. We'll call your insurance company and verify the necessary insurance binder. And finally, we'll put temporary plates on your new Mercedes-Benz. Then it's home you go.

This special service is just one more way your authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer extends the value of your car ownership far beyond the car itself. We're out to build a lasting relationship with every single one of our customers.

And if putting you in the Mercedes-Benz you want today will help us do that, you'd better believe we'll do it.

Like no other dealers in the world.

See your authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer.

BUSINESS BEAT

By Nancy Hills

Cabbages & Kings

THE NAME Cabbages & Kings probably brings back memories for many longtime residents of Carmel. Though I wan't there at the time, I understand it was a shop, started in the 1920s and closed in the '50s, which was in the old Carmel tradition — quality, unique styles and personal service.

Diane Ditty, former managing partner of the Quail & Thistle in Pebble Beach, wants to revive that feeling and tradition.

Ditty has opened her own Cabbages & Kings — a new women's clothing store in the former location of Spencers-on-the-Park on Dolores between Seventh and Ocean.

Ditty gave the tiny old Carmel cottage an interior facelift that retains the original charm of the building and added a new dimension. The kitchen, bathroom and closet have been transformed into three unusual dressing rooms, one of which looks into the garden in back.

The shop carries "sophisticated casual" clothing, Ditty said, with "lots of denim" and hand-knit, one-of-a-kind sweaters. She also carries jackets made from antique quilts and blouses made from antique linens.

No blue jeans, though. This is more of a classic look with skirts, pants and blouses in all kinds of natural materials. There's no age limit for the customer, she added, though it's not trendy. Her clothes will look right through the years, she added.

"It's an extension of my own closet," Ditty said.

She's also looking for memories of the original Cabbages & Kings, so if you remember it, drop on by and share your recollections.

FROZEN DESSERTS GALORE

If you thought there wasn't a place to satisfy that sweet tooth in Carmel, think again.

Frozen yogurt and ice cream is definitely available now in Carmel.

Already open is Yogurt of Carmel, located on the first level of Carmel Plaza.

Sue Tasner, owner with her husband Bob, is serving up 28 toppings and 50 flavors of yogurt. Well, she rotates the 50 flavors so there are six a day. There will always be a non-dairy sorbet and a lowfat yogurt on hand also.

Every day there will be vanilla and a variety of chocolate, Tasner said. Dutch chocolate, milk chocolate, white chocolate macadamia and chocolate almond are just few of the flavors that will pop up from time to time.

In addition to the yogurt, Tasner says they have smoothies — fresh fruit, yogurt and protein powder — and shakes.

The 28 toppings include fresh strawberries, hot fudge, blueberry/apple, all kinds of nuts, gumballs, coconut, raisins and cookie toppings.

Those can go on yogurt flavors that vary from apricot cream, cappuccino, peaches and cream, strawberry cream, southern pralines and peanut butter. That's all I'm going to list — 50 is just too many for me to handle.

They're open from morning through the evening.

OPENING NEXT week is Super Sundae Matinee on the corner of Dolores and Eighth.

John Baldwin presents an unusual combination of ice cream shop and video rental store in the former location of numerous restaurants.

He said he hopes to be open by Tuesday or Wednesday.

The ice cream, "gourmet soft serve," Baldwin said, will be self-serve and sold by weight with whatever toppings the customer selects. Forty-seven toppings to be precise. He also has soft-serve yogurt, sorbet and milk shakes. Just about any taste one could imagine.

The ice cream, Baldwin says, has no artificial flavorings and contains more butterfat than almost any other soft-serve ice cream.

In the Dolores side of the store, there are 12 booths — each with its own televison monitor. The monitor plays any of six video channels. On those channels will be short subjects like How To Improve Your Golf Game, How to Solve a Mystery, Exploring the Universe, Trivia with Rich Little and so on. New subjects will be added from time to time, Baldwin said.

You can't watch any movies though. However, you can rent them from the Lincoln Street end of the shop. Baldwin says he has 800 titles to start with for purchase or rent. He also will be selling and renting videocassette recorders.

Baldwin gives credit for putting the entire package together not only to his own contributions, but that of contractor Alan Williams and manager Rich Holine.

BELLI IN CARMEL

I don't know if the Bakkers will be driving up to Melvin Belli's newest office located here in Carmel, but I won't be holding my breath.

Belli has ended his partnership with David Sabih in Pacific Grove and moved into the former San Francisco Federal Savings building on Junipero between Fifth and Sixth.

Actually, the office will be manned by attornies Rodney Sheperd and Richard Walker, though Belli may be passing through on occasion.

The office is only one of several Belli has, including the San Francisco and Sacramento locations.

Sheperd, who's been a partner with Belli for three years, also works out of the Sacramento office, so he will be spending time in that office as well as here.

SWEET THINGS are served up by Sue Tasner in her recently-opened frozen yogurt shop in Carmel Plaza, Yogurt of Carmel. Tasner is serving six flavors of yogurt every day — always including vanilla and chocolate — as well as a non-dairy sorbert, smoothies and shakes. She has on hand a total of 50 flavors, of which she'll rotate on a six-per-day basis. (Holly McFarland photo.)

DIANE DITTY has given new life to a shop name familar to longtime Carmel residents. Ditty has opened Cabbages & Kings, a women's clothing store, located next to Picadilly Park on Dolores with an eye toward recreating the feeling of old Carmel. Her shop will sell mostly the "classic" look in fashions. (Holly McFarland photo.)

OBITUARIES

Roxie B. Saunders

Services took place June 6 at the Paul Mortuary Chapel, for Roxie B. Saunders, a resident of Pacific Grove for the past 35 years, who died June 3 at Community Hospital. She was 85.

Born Jan. 17, 1902 in Gurdon, Ark., she was a janitor and kitchen helper at Monterey Peninsula College for many years.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church in Pacific Grove.

Mrs. Saunders is survived by a sister, Lonnie Walker of Pacific Grove, and one niece and one nephew, both of Los Angeles.

Burial took place at Mission Memorial Park in Seaside. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Dean J. McDowell

Private cremation took place for Dean J. McDowell, a Pebble Beach resident since 1976, who died June 17 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 71.

Born Feb. 4, 1916 in Aberdeen, S.D., he moved to Oakland when he was 7 years old.

He was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army Signal Corps as an intelligence analyst of intercepted Japanese messages.

He was an administrative officer at Bank of America's headquarters in San Francisco for 15 years, vice president and manager of the bank's San Luis Obispo branch for five years, vice president and manager of the Oakland main office for four years, and senior vice president in charge of the branches located in Alameda, Contra Costa, Napa and Solano counties. He retired after 42 years with the bank.

He was active as a director, vice president, treasurer or member of many civic and philanthropic organizations in the San Francisco Bay area, including Rotary, the chamber of commerce and the United Way.

Active in golf throughout his life, he was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and California State Seniors Golf Association.

Survivors include his wife, Mary; a son, Don of Castro Valley; a daughter, Mary Huckaby of Oakland; and two grandchildren.

At McDowell's request, no services took place. Ashes were scattered at sea near Bird Rock in Pebble Beach. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, Community Hospital or to the charity of the donor's choice.

Lars Svendsgaard

Funeral services, followed by private entombment took place June 22 at Siskiyou Memorial Park in Medford, Ore., for Lars Svendsgaard, formerly of Pebble Beach, who died June 19 in Medford. He was 86.

He was born Dec. 16, 1900 in Bowdon, N.D. In 1925 he married the former Hilda C. Lillefgeld in Bismarck, N.D. They moved to Berkeley in 1928 and to Pebble Beach in the late 1960s.

He opened the Svendsgaard Lodge in Carmel, and in Solvang.

He was a past president of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and the Carmel Rotary Club.

During World War II, he served in the U.S. Army, retiring with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Survivors include his wife, Hilda of Medford; a brother Harold Svendsgaard of Hayward; a sister, Marie Anderson of Pleasanton; daughter-in-law, Kathryn Risdon Harper of Medford; two grandchildren, Lars Svendsgaard II of San Francisco and Christina Svendsgaard of Medford. He was preceded in death by a son, Lewellyn; two brothers and one sister.

The Perl With Siskiyou Funeral Service was in charge of arrangements.

Loretta H. Casebolt

Memorial services took place June 29 at the Ullrey Memorial Chapel in Yuba City, for Loretta Hodal Casebolt, a former Carmel resident and a former teacher at Del Monte School in Monterey, who died June 24 at Fremont Hospital in Yuba City. She was 49.

Born April 27, 1938 in Stockton, she grew up in Yuba City and graduated from Yuba College, Marysville, and the University of the Pacific, Stockton.

She had been a Carmel resident for 17 years and taught in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School Distraict for six years. She returned to Yuba City in 1976.

She was a member of the Presbyterian churches in Carmel and Marysville, and in her youth was a member of Rainbow Girls and Campfire Girls. She was also a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Survivors include her mother, Anne Hodal of Yuba City, and a sister, Heidi Miles of Live Oak. Her husband, Neal Casebolt, died in 1976, and her son, Kent Casebolt, died in 1973.

Private burial took place in the Sutter Cemetery in Sutter.

Dorothea C. Hamill

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Dorothea C. Hamill of Carmel, who died June 14 at her home. She was 93.

Born July 27, 1893 in Oak Park, Ill., she was a homemaker and had lived in Carmel for 16 years. She leaves no survivors. Her husband, Eugene, died in 1981.

Ashes were to be scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Lester L. Seyferth

Private services took place in San Jose for Lester Low Serferth of Carmel Highlands, who died June 17 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. He was 90.

He was born Sept. 20, 1896 in Cedarville, Modoc County, a member of Oregon and California families that came west on the Oregon Trail.

In his early life, he was a horse and cattle rancher in California and Nevada, capturing and training mustangs and accompanying them east by rail for sale to the French Army during World War I. His homestead in Nevada, called Board Corral, is now a national monument.

He served in the Army cavalry during World War I and in 1919 married Bernice Perkins of Stockton, who died in 1944. His second wife, the former Louise Stansberry, died last year.

In 1961 he retired as a locomotive engineer wth the Western Pacific Railroad Co. after 44 years of service. For many years, he was an engineer on the Caifornia Zephyr, Feather River route.

After retiring, he lived in San Jose. He had lived in Carmel Highlands with his son, Harold, since 1986.

In addition to his son, he is survived by a stepson, Richard Stansberry of Alamo; a brother, George of Berkeley; a sister, Violet Howell of Walnut Creek; and two grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Big Sur Land Trust.

Survivors include his wife, Hilda of Medford; a brother Harold Svendsgaard of Hayward; a sister, Marie Anderson of Pleasanton; daughter-in-law, Kathryn Risdon Harper of Medford; two grandchildren, Lars Svendsgaard II of San Francisco and Christina Svendsgaard of Medford. He was preceded in death by a son, Lewellyn; two brothers and one sister.

The Perl With Siskiyou Funeral Service was in charge of arrangements.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

It's really great to be home again

Carmel Rotary July 21, 1982

The Old Testament prophet Micah came from an obscure and unimportant village—Moresheth. He wrote these words:

"Lord, shepherd Your people with Your staff, the flock of Your inheritance that dwells in a woodland in the midst of Carmel. Show us wonderful signs, You who delight in clemency."

Lord, bless us all who dwell "apart in the woodland in the midst of Carmel."

On the back of a book of matches given me in Guanajuato last week I read these words which aptly apply to my Mexican pilgrimage.

I quote: "In olden times travel was bitterly uncomfortable and highly dangerous. The word travel comes from the French word travail which means extreme agony." End of quote. The Oxford dictionary reaffirms this meaning, "to suffer torment, distress and pain."

In 1823 John Howard Payne wrote the opera Clari, Maid of Milano which is remembered today for this one song: Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam; be it ever so humble there's no place like home.

In 55 B.C. Marcus Tullius Cicero observed that there is nothing so ridiculous but some philosopher has said it. However, he wisely said "what is more agreeable than home!"

Thank You, Lord, for helping me to survive the "travail" and "pain" of my recent journey but thank You most of all for bringing me back home safely to the Monterey Peninsula. Oh Lord, why do we have to go through a vale of tears to learn the obvious?

Reduced-fee dental care now offered

The Monterey Bay Dental Society, a member of the California Dental Association, (CDA), announced plans to provide reduced-fee care to an even greater number of senior citizens through its "Senior-Dent" program.

"CDA lowered the age requirement from 65 to 60 years so that more senior citizens can receive the dental care they need and deserve," said Gerry Tarsitano, D.D.S.

Since the program was introduced eight years ago, more than 6,000 dentists, all of whom belong to CDA, have treated over 100,000 seniors.

Participating dentists have agreed to reduce their fees for all dental procedures, including examinations, fillings, and full and partial dentures.

"We encourage eligible persons to take advantage of the Senior-Dent program for regular, preventive dental care," added Tarsitano.

To be eligible, a patient must be 60 years of age or older, have an annual household income of $16,000 or less, and not be receiving dental benefits from the state or private insurance plan.

For more information about this reduced-fee dental care program, call the California Dental Association toll-free at (800) 421-8702.

SPCA seeks towels, blankets, sheets

The wildlife center operated by the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is in need of discarded, but clean, blankets, towels, sheets and pillowcases.

According to Jim Bennett, MCSPCA community relations manager, "The Wildlife Center uses these items in a variety of ways, to include lining the cages of the many baby birds which are turned in to the center for rehabilitation and nurturing prior to their being released back into the wild. In addition, the blankets are used to cover bird cages and we even use some of the towels for the various rodents we have in our care."

Arrangements can be made by the MCSPCA to pick up these items at the donor's home if transportation to the SPCA is not possible. Items can be dropped off at the SPCA office, 1002 Monterey-Salinas Highway, or for pick-up, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

Alzheimer's Disease discussed

A support group for caregivers of persons with Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders meets from 4 to 5 p.m. every other Thursday in the library at the Monterey County Health Department office, 1270 Natividad Road, Salinas.

Group leader is Mary Moran, Geriatric Social Work Specialist with the mental health division of the health department. For more information, call 424-0946.

Addiction intervention workshop set

A professionally arranged intervention can break the cycle of drug or alcohol addiction and begin the recovery process.

In an intervention, family and friends of someone who is chemically dependent confront that person in a caring way with the consequences of continuing addictive behavior.

A free workshop to explain how intervention works will be conducted from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 21 at the Community Hospital Recovery Center, 576 Hartnell St., Monterey.

Recovery Center shows film

Children of Denial, a film about addiction, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 22 in the Education Building behind the Community Hospital Recovery Center, 576 Hartnell St., Monterey.

After the film, Recovery Center staff personnel will lead a discussion of drug and alcohol addiction, and treatment for the disease of chemical dependency. For more information, call 373-0924.

Prophecy Corner

BY Phil Lunsford

The answer is found in the Bible, God's Word. I've been a student of the Bible for 15 years and my interest has been directed toward Bible prophecy concerning the "Latter Days." I've studied "Latter Day" prophecy in depth for five years. I've studied under the direction of Dr. Charles Taylor, who has been a minister for 50 years and has taught Biblical prophecy for 40 years.

In the Old Testament of the Bible, God gave his Prophets, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Joel, Zachariah and Daniel, several visions concerning "Latter Day" prophecy.

In the New Testament book of Revelation, God gave a detailed account of the "Latter Day" seven-year event called "The Great Tribulation." During this seven-year period, God will deal with the State of Israel and the rest of the world for our rejection of His Laws. A soon to come, one-day nuclear war will start "The Great Tribulation" period.

It is foretold in the Old Testament book of Ezekiel, chapters 38 and 39, that Russia and the Warsaw Pact nations will invade Israel. This will touch off the one-day nuclear war foretold in the Old Testament book of Joel as the United States and the European Common Market defend Israel.

In the New Testament book of Revelation, it is foretold that during the one-day nuclear war, one-third of the Earth will be burned. If one totals the land mass area of the nations the Bible prophesies will be involved in the war, the figure comes out exactly to one-third of the total land mass area of the Earth.

During this seven-year period, the following aspects of Biblical prophecy will come to pass. (1) The one day nuclear war; (2) The one world ruler coming into power (referred to in the Bible as the "Anti-Christ" or "The Beast." This ruler will sign a "seven-year covenant" with Israel to protect the state. The seven-year covenant is one in the same as The Tribulation period.

(3) "The Mark of The Beast" or "666" will be required. IBM has invented the laser tattoo gun No. 3666, which can put an invisible tattoo on a person's hand or forehead. The Anti-Christ will use this "mark" to identify a person's financial status during the last half of The Tribulation period.

(4) Jesus Christ coming back with the Armies of Heaven to fight the "War of Armageddon."

I understand that when one reads these terrifying events, it seems that there is no hope. There is blessed hope, however. God's word also promises that Jesus Christ will remove His true believers from every Church denomination before the nuclear war. This will be explained in my next article.

Robert Clary counts art among his talents

By ANNE PAPINEAU

ALTHOUGH ROBERT Clary has only visited Carmel about three times in his life, he says he owes much to one of the peninsula's stellar residents, Merv Griffin.

It was Griffin who introduced the actor to his wife of several years, Natalie, the daughter of Eddie Cantor. And on the eve of the first gallery showing of his art, Clary turned to his host and noted, "Merv instigated all this."

Clary's collection of paintings at Carmel's New Masters Gallery may confound some viewers.

"What is the medium?" inquired one onlooker.

"I asked a friend, 'what would you call what I am doing?' " recalled Clary, his accent still Parisian. "I paint with colored pencil. It is soft enough to mix like paint on cold press board."

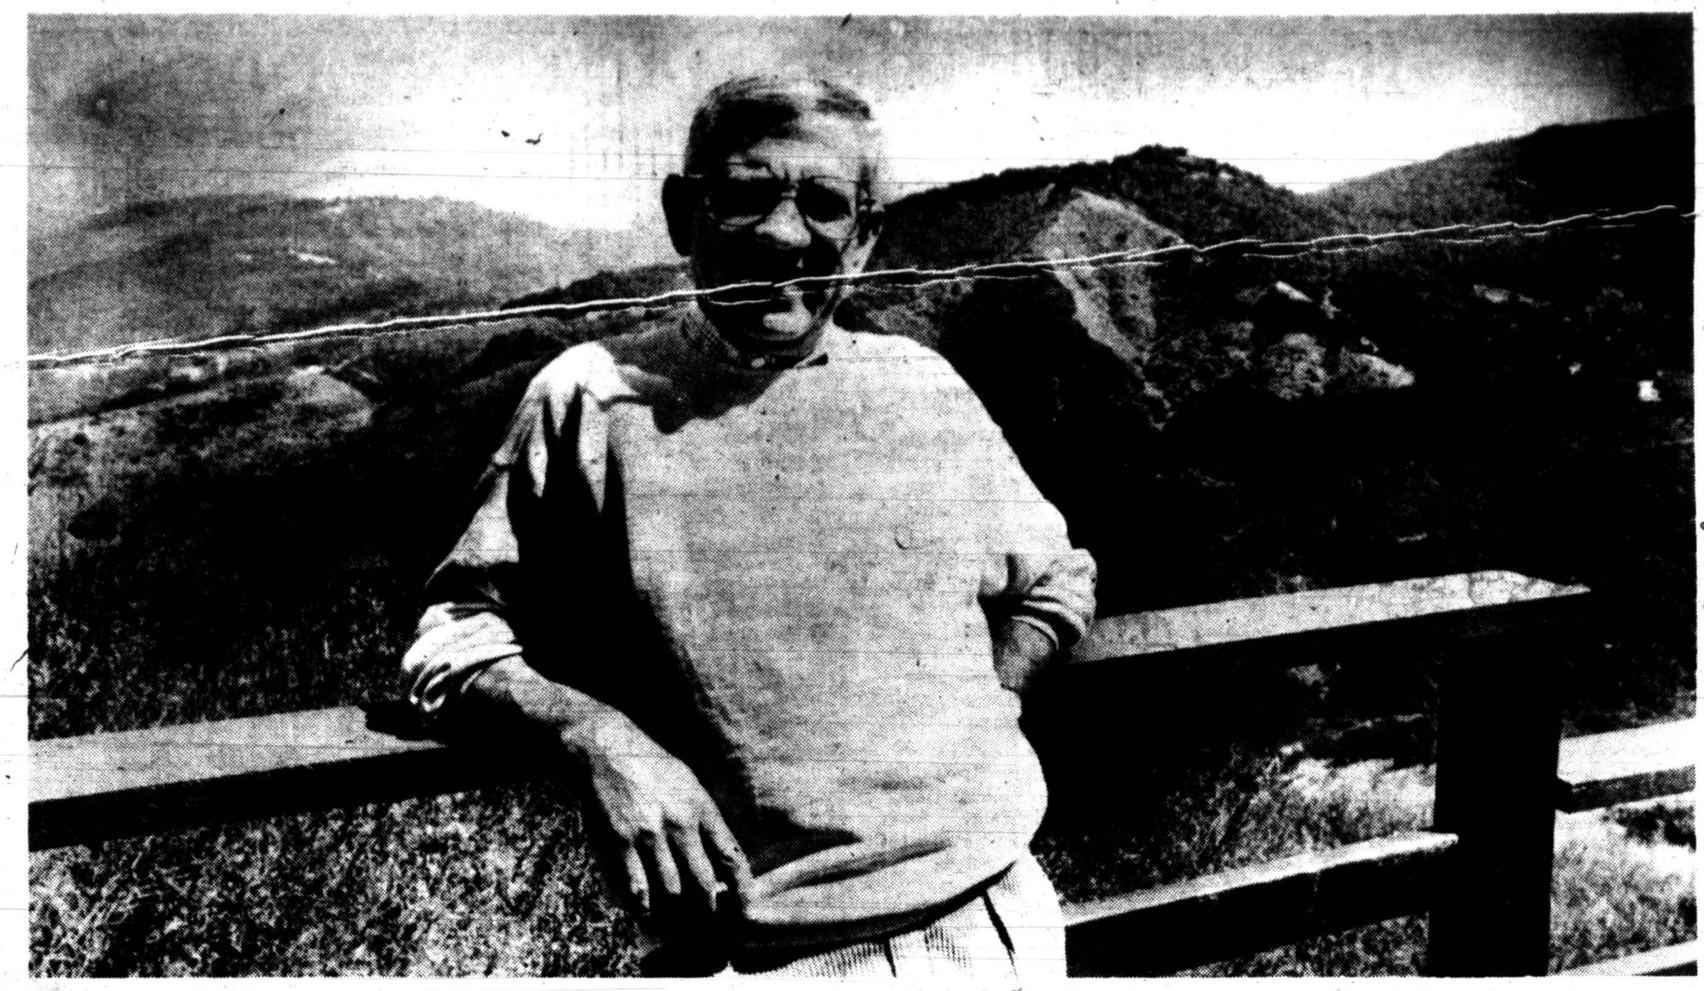
Clary entered show business as a singer in his native Paris at the age of 12. A multifaceted entertainer, his career has embraced night clubs, movies, theater, records and long-run roles on such television series as Hogan's Heroes and Days of Our Lives.

As a teenager during World War II, Clary spent 31 months interned in five different concentration camps.

"Thirteen of my immediate family were deported. Only I came back," he stated. Yet despite the long shifts of forced labor, Clary sang and danced for his peers.

Such memories seem distant as Clary speaks of his art from Griffin's hilltop retreat in Carmel Valley. The lawns and pool are bathed in sunlight. Earlier, Clary supervised the hanging of his show in Carmel, the town socked in by fog all afternoon.

"I could always draw well. I spent two years in an art school learning commercial art and I loved it," he noted. "Those things, art and show business, were always very parallel in my life."



ROBERT CLARY, who has distinguished himself in the entertainment world, has now made his mark in art, as well. The first gallery exhibition of Clary's paintings took place last weekend at the New Masters Gallery in Carmel. Clary, a guest of Merv Griffin in Carmel Valley, oversaw the hanging of the show. His "paintings" are actually composed in colored pencil. (Holly McFarland photograph).

Although schooled in art as a youth, Clary's performing career prevented him from pursuing drawing until the cancellation of Hogan's Heroes in 1971.

"When that show was over my phone literally did not ring for a whole year. I doodled in my spare time, and during '71 I was very prolific. I showed my artwork to a friend, Kaye Ballard, and she encouraged me."

Clary said that he usually gave away his completed designs to friends. A few he sold.

"I used to go on Merv's show very often and he knows the galleries of Carmel. He said that whenever I put together enough paintings, he would help me launch an exhibit. I've got 19 paintings now, so I said, 'Put your money where your mouth is.' "

Clary's travels, whether for pleasure or business, provide the inspiration for his art. During a recent engagement performing in Irma La Douce, Clary took the time to photograph the denizens of Atlantic City.

"I took enough pictures to get my impression of the Boardwalk at Atlantic City. These images say something to me," he observed. Later Clary will retreat to a room in his Beverly Hills home, where he will sketch surrounded by "records, stereo, table, good light — nobody comes and bothers me."

His first gallery exhibit is repleat with color-rich interpretations of the Middle East. Among the titles are "Children of Tel Aviv," "Market Day in Arab Quarters" and "Laundry Day in Aku." Clary said he enjoys injecting as much detail as possible into each "painting," capturing the individuality in the seemingly identical blocks of Jerusalem stone.

Clary typically employs three layers of different colored pencil strokes to depict people and places.

"I can mix the color, use it like paint," he explained. "I don't have the control with a brush that I do with pencil."

High school instructors warm summer with cool jazz

By DAVID LELAND

IT MAY be summer vacation but Carmel High School music teacher Dick Robins is not resting on his laurels — no matter how successful they may be. No, this summer Robins is boning up on his jazz chops.

Robins, who last year brought back the music program to the high school with the help of the Frohman Academy, will start up a jazz ensemble for the students come September.

You could say he's a little bit excited. In fact, you could say he's a lot excited.

"This year we are going to have a jazz band, which I'm real thrilled about," beams jazz trumpeter Robins. "I would like it to be 18 pieces."

Last year, Robins' only organized effort was the wind ensemble, which played and performed all styles of music ranging from classical pieces to jazz charts.

"It gave every student a chance to experience playing a good jazz chart," says Robins, who came to Carmel last year from Southern California. "We had a full concert band playing jazz charts."

That wasn't bad, but it caused Robins to transpose the normal big band arrangements with many brass instruments to fit his orchestration, which had more traditional woodwinds.

ARTS & LEISURE

This year there will be two bands.

And armed with the knowledge that "It don't mean a thing if it don't have that swing," Robins has gone back to school to receive the latest techniques in teaching jazz to young people.

Last week, Robins joined 10 other music teachers from the Bay Area and peninsula at Robert Louis Stevenson School for the "Summer Music Monterey's Teachers Jazz Workshop."

"Its purpose was to initiate ideas and techniques that we could present students in regard to jazz feeling, training and harmony," explains Robins.

Facilitated by Rich Matteson of Florida State University, the educators met two ses-

ON STAGE

Almost Everything You Wanted to Know About Nan But...

Nanette Fabray stars in Almost Everything You Wanted to Know About Nan But..., a musical autobiography staged at the New Wharf Theatre in Monterey.

Directed and produced by Tony Award-winning Broadway choreographer/director Danny Daniels, the musical plays nightly through Sunday, July 19. It is presented by the Frohman Academy in association with its producing arm, the American Musical Theatre Festival.

Almost Everything You Wanted to Know About Nan But... traces Miss Fabray's life from when she entered show business at the age of 3 in vaudeville as "Baby Nan" to today. She is the recipient of two Donaldson Awards for High Button Shoes, a Tony Award as best actress for Love Life and three Emmys for Caesar's Hour.

Miss Fabray is a member of the board of trustees of the House Ear Institute and President Reagan appointed her to the National Council for the Handicapped.

Curtain is at 8 nightly except Sunday, when curtain is at 7:30 p.m. The theater is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Tickets, $15, can be reserved by calling 649-5561.

Lone Star, Laundry and Bourbon

An award-winning pair of one-acts, Laundry and Bourbon and Lone Star, will transport theatergoers into the hearts, minds, bars and cars of Maynard, Texas.

Directed by Juliet Funt, the plays will open Monday, July 20 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey. James McLure wrote the one-acts which are obsessed with highballs, Mars bars, Baptists, bourbon, Hank Williams, Vietnam, child kleptomaniacs, dogs named Poochie, pancake suppers, Ray Charles, jockey shorts, vanilla cones, International Harvester, Let's Make a Deal and one very special 1959 pink Thunderbird convertible.

The ensemble includes Michelle Newman, Bill Reinthaler, Nita Raichart, Jim Grinsted, David Moses and Rachel Wheeler. A reception will follow Monday's 8 p.m. opening. The one-acts will continue Monday through Wednesday nights until July 29.

The theater is at 320 Hoffman (off Lighthouse) in New Monterey. All seats are $6. For reservations or information, call 649-6852 or 649-5561.

Children of a Lesser God

Children of a Lesser God, Mark Medoff's play about trust, understanding, independence and caring, will open Thursday, July 16 in the Studio Theater of the Western Stage.

Gerre A. Maillet directs the production, and is assisted by Pam Tidwell, interpretor and teacher of the Deaf Impaired at Hartnell College. She will also "sign" the opening peformance and the July 18 performances of Children of a Lesser God.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, July 16-18. The theater is housed in the Performing Arts Complex at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. Studio ticket prices are $8.50 for Friday and Saturday nights, $7.50 for Thursday and Sunday nights and matinees. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 649-5561.

1987 Monterey Bay TheatreFest

The fourth incarnation of the Monterey Bay TheatreFest, an outreach project of GroveMont Theater, comes to life at the historic Outdoor Custom House Plaza and Memory Garden located between the Doubletree Hotel and the top of Fisherman's Wharf in downtown Monterey.

TheatreFest productions play continuously 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays through Aug. 2. Admission to TheatreFest is free. More than 100 performances of seven different productions will be presented on the three stages utilized for the event.

Presented on the main stage in the Lower Plaza is The Sacking of Monterey ... or ... It's Bouchard! Showing at noon and 3 p.m., the drama is written and directed by John Rousseau. It is based loosely on the actual take-over and razing of Monterey by the Argentine patriot, Hipolyte Bouchard. The show features gunfire and cannon duels.

Also on the main stage will be a TheatreFest staple, The Human Chess Game. Presented at 4 p.m. and directed by Mickie Mosley Braun, the production utilizes a 1,000-square foot chess board and 32 players/pieces.

"Fairy Tale Theater" will be presented on the Upper Plaza Stage with showings at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. The six-member troupe will present Goldilocks and the Three Bears and The Three Little Pigs.

Afternoon garden shows have been added for the first time this year. The Memory Garden will provide the setting for the 1 p.m. staging of two broad farces, The Shyster's Shenanigans and The Three Cuckolds. Both will be presented in the "Commedia del' Arte" style, making use of the traditional masks.

The Memory Garden will also be the setting for Snakespeare's magical comedy, A Midsummer Night's Dream. TheatreFest founder Stephen Moorer directs the twilight production, which will begin at 6 p.m.

Assorted food and drinks, including beer and wine, will be available throughout the event.

The King and I

The King and I, Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical interpretation of the impossible love between an English governess and the King of Siam continues at The Western Stage.

This is the community show of the summer at the theater housed in the Performing Arts Center at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. The cast features Sheila Savage as Anna Leonowens and Danny Gochnauer as the King.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 17-18. Admission is $10 and $13 on Fridays and Saturdays, $11 and $8 for Thursday and Sunday matinees. Children and seniors qualify for $1 discount.

For tickets, call the Western Stage box office, 375-2111, or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

Oklahoma!

The Rodgers and Hammerstein milestone musical Oklahoma! continues its run on the main stage of Monterey Peninsula College through July 25.

Oklahoma, which first opened in 1943 and played for five years on Broadway, was innovative in its blending of dance, music and theater. The MPC production is directed by John Pasqualetti, director of the Hidden Valley Dance Program.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays. Matinee performances are at 2 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is $10

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

'Oklahoma!' is much more than OK!

IN 1943, in the depths of World War II, at St. James Theater on Broadway, a musical opened that was to become an American Icon, a testament to the energy and optimism of the American frontier, a smash hit musical — Oklahoma! Its songs are firmly lodged in the memories of an entire generation. "Oh What a Beautiful Morning," "Kansas City (Everything's Up to Date in...), "People Will Say We're in Love" are only some of the timeless tunes that sprang from the minds of Rodgers and Hammerstein in this, their first collaboration.

Each of these collaborators was well established in his respective role: Rodgers as composer, Hammerstein as lyricist. Rodgers had worked on Connecticut Yankee, Pal Joey and many others; Hammerstein on Show Boat, Desert Song, and more. But in Oklahoma! they struck a uniquely American chord; they created a popular folk opera that affected us as fundamentally as "America the Beautiful;" it made us feel good about ourselves and as a people. Even though the pair went on to such efforts as Carousel and South Pacific, audiences found that Oklahoma! remained their favorite Rodgers and Hammerstein. Its bright appeal and honest emotions sustained it.

The MPC production fulfilled my expectations exceedingly well. Dennis Howes is the scenic designer and he has created some stunning settings. A large lone oak dominates center stage in the opening scene, with a porch to the left and a barn to the right. The cloud-filled sky at the rear has depth and James Brentano's lighting design shifts subtly and effectively to achieve the changing times of day and evening. The other scenes were also well designed.

Constance Gamiere and her crew deserve praise for the carefully selected costumes: monochromatic shirts and jeans for men, pastels and calicos for the women. In the wedding scene, everyone becomes more elegant, with the women's gowns appearing particularly rich.

John Newkirk's Curley is an open-handed cowpoke who we would like to believe represented western manhood. It's an endearing illusion. Mitchel Davis's Jud Fry is a dark, smoldering, evil presence. They couldn't be more opposed if they sported white and black hats. Curley and Jud are both in love with fickle Laurey, perkily played by Shannon Murray, and this competition for her affection makes up the main plot.

A subplot involves Ado Annie (Laura McEvoy), her beau Will Parker (Robert M. Basgall), and the lecherous peddler Ali Hakim (John Kaupanger). It's all great fun and involves Ado Annie's reputation as the girl who "Cain't Say No." This part is such a plum that the actress who lands it has her arms full. Casting here is ingenious. Laura McEvoy just about runs away with the show as she sings, clowns, and dances her way into our hearts. You may remember Laura from the production of Evita that was staged at the Fort Ord Cabaret Theater. Laura played that part with a similar kind of verve.

The other performances that bear mentioning are Aunt Eller, played with wry humor by Michele Savage, and Andrew Carnes played with curmudgeonly sass by Michael Robbins.

There are a few things that bothered me, but they involved the script, not the company. There is a dance number just before the intermission that I would have taken out because the show runs long as it is and this number is the vague sort of mood piece that seemed to have the dancers as confused as I was.

There is also a problem with the plot in my mind. The character of Jud Fry, the villain, is too sinister for this wholesome caper. I suppose that the authors wanted us to hate him so they can kill him off later to the glee of the crowd; no villainy, no glee. I would have preferred less villainy and only a modicum of glee. As it is he comes off as a psychopath, casts a pall over the proceedings, and is perfunctorily dispatched.

Last but most important is the director and choreographer, John Pasqualetti, whose total control pays off in the very fine integration of dancing and acting.

The orchestra performed nicely under the direction of David Rupert and Lil Wallace.

If you've seen Oklahoma! before, see it again and enjoy the warmth a second time. If you haven't seen it before, I envy your pleasure upon seeing it for the first time.

AUNT ELLER (Michele Savage, left), oversees the on-again, off-again romance between Curly (John Newkirk) and Laurey (Shannon K. Murray) in Oklahoma!

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

'Quilters' opens at York School

MONTEREY PENINSULA College opened a production of Quilters last weekend at York School. The authors, Molly Newman and Barbara Damashek, consulted a number of books on quilting, life on the plains, women's folk poetry, and prairie history to write an innovative folk musical. The play is divided into 16 "blocks" (named for the quilt block that symbolizes each episode, i.e. log cabin — moving into a new house, wedding ring — celebrating a marriage). Each block represents an episode in the life of one or more of the women as they survive the bleakness of the prairie.

What makes their lives a lot less bleak is their quilting. It is their artistic outlet, their social satisfaction, their therapy. The scenes are moving, exciting, sad, grim. Example: in the bitter winter cold, the children can hear the cows outside drop to the ground as they freeze to death. Their father then goes out and skins them so the hides can be saved and used as insulation against the wind. In another episode prairie fires devastate whole counties; all is lost but they begin again.

We feel that these episodes take place in a variety of families, the original family of mother and daughters as well as in all mothers, daughters, and sisters "piecing together" continuity in their lives on the American frontier. We move freely around their family tree. Nick Zanides directs the complex piece well, moving us in and out of each episode with certainty.

Good times are represented too: love and marriage, a new home, children. Aye, there's the rub. As we hear the recitation of births, stillbirths, miscarriages, we realize the family tragedies that occuried incessantly. One woman, paralyzed by the grief of her recent loss is given her quilting things in her lap. Her fingers slowly begin to move in the familiar stitching motions and after a while she has recovered and is whole again. We find out that these women have 12, 13, 15 children including many that do not live beyond infancy.

The cast consists of the mother, Sarah, played admirably by

THE PREACHER (Regina Hicks) prepares to baptize a young girl (Elisa Swartz) in Quilters. The play is directed by Nick Zanides and continues at the York School Theater.

Regina Hicks. There are six daughters; two you may know: Roz Zanides, whose talents reveal new facets when seen in homespun, and Leila Knight, whose range (having recently played a vampire) is notable. The others are Virginia August, Tamsen and Kelly Knapp, and Elisa Swartz. Swartz sings a wicked number expressing the distaste of quilters toward a character that shows up in a lot of cloying quilt pattersn — Sunbonnet Sue. She envisions a quilt showing Sue hung, stabbed, clubbed etc. The audience enjoyed this imaginary revenge.

One thing bothered me about the script and it was brought to mind by the audience's reaction to Sunbonnet Sue. They took great glee at the mayhem. Other than that oblique reference, the script lacks any human conflict. Some conflict between the women (and men) must have occurred on the prairie. It would have helped to show just a bit of this discord as balance for all the good supportive behavior we see.

The sets by Roger Thompson are spare but strong. Two windmill towers frame the stage: they are used to hang quilts on, climb on, tie ropes to. Some saw horses, stools, and buckets are also deployed.

Costumes are calico dresses used with imagination. One young daughter wears a dress too large for her to remind us of hand-me-downs. Having the actresses in bare feet underscores the poverty of the family.

Stephen Tosh provides music on synthesizer. He recently played and acted wonderfully in Billy Bishop Goes to War for the Western Stage. Choreography is ably handled to Laura McEvoy.

In the play's program we are told of the quilt that was designed specially for the play. It consists of sixteen four-by-four panels ("blocks"). It took 21 quilters 30 days for a total of 3,000 "women and men" hours to finish this gigantic piece. Seeing this show, you cannot help but be drawn into the world of quilts with their bold patterns and intricate craftsmanship. Before the show or during intermission, you are invited to see a quilt show in the York School Chapel, next to the theater.

Quilters plays at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 2 p.m. matinee Sundays through July 25th. Since the theater is small, reservations are advised.

Free hospital seminar will focus on stress reduction

"Exercise and Stress" will be the topic of a community health workshop planned from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, July 18 in the main conference room at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Six speakers will discuss various aspects of exercise in physical and emotional health, then participate in a panel discussion and question and answer session.

Dr. Mary McQuade, Community Hospital Mental Health Center psychiatrist, will discuss the psychological benefits of exercise. Joseph Sanders, registered dietician and exercise physiologist, will discuss aerobic exercise. A representative of the Community Hospital Dietary Department will discuss exercise and diet.

Cardiologist Dr. Basil Allaire will explain the heart's response to exercise and cardiac stress testing. Orthopedist Dr. Richard Dauphine will discuss steps to a safe exercise program. And Community Hospital health education nurse Barbara Parker will explain how to incorporate exercise into your daily life.

The workshop is open to the public without charge, but seating is limited so early arrival is recommended. Coffee and tea will be served. For more information, call 625-4505.

Summer storytimes resume in P.G.

The Pacific Grove Public Library will present its Summer Storytime Sessions from now until Aug. 26.

Storytimes for children ages 2 and 3 will be presented 10:30 to 11 a.m. each Wednesday. Children ages 4 to 8 will hear storytimes from 3:30 to 4 p.m. on Wednesdays and "pre-school storytime," for children ages 3 to 5, will meet 10:30 to 11 a.m. each Thursday.

For more information about these programs, contact children's librarian Lisa Maddalena at 373-0603.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

'The King and I': solid family entertainment

RODGERS AND Hammerstein's The King and I is none the worse for its many years on the world's stages. Although attitudes and fashions have changed radically since this show was first performed in the 1940s, the story endures — partly because it transcends romance to achieve true friendship between the principals, and partly because its conflict is based on a colorful clash of cultures between the exotic Siamese and the imperial English.

The current production on the Western Stage has the benefit of outstanding performances in the leading roles. Sheila Savage is everything Mrs. Anna ought to be — lovely, passionately involved in her work, and rather a feminist considering the time and place. Savage's lovely singing voice, perfect diction, and strong portrayal of the widowed schoolma'arm attempting to instruct the royal Siamese household in the ways of the western world are exactly right, and she carries off several difficult numbers with great presence. She has her match in Danny Gochnauer's King of Siam, which bursts with primitive vitality, childlike innocence, and a robust voice. Like Savage's, Gochnauer's performance is flawless and unique, and the two create a chemistry onstage that give this production a greater coherence than it would otherwise enjoy.

This is not to say Anna and the King are the only good things in this big, complex show. As Anna's young son, Johua Dick's young Louie brings an engaging voice and solid acting skills to his small but important role. Diane Renner's Lady Thiang brings Eastern elegance and understatement to the role of the King's first wife. Coral Miranda and Tom Juarez do justice to some of Richard Rodgers' loveliest songs ("We Kiss in a Shadow" and "I Have Dreamed"). And the play within a play ("Small House of Uncle Thomas") is a choreographic delight.

But there are some dead spots, too many lulls, and a general looseness to the production that I have not seen in this season's other shows. On opening night, I sat there wondering whether modern theatergoers are simply used to faster pacing. But I don't think so. Too often, there are too many people onstage with too little to do, a fault more likely in Peter DeBono's direction and Akemi Ito's choreography than in the play itself.

On opening night, the orchestra had its troubles too. Although accompaniment throughout the show was capable enough, and in the play within a play, splendid, the overture suffered from problems in the flutes and horns that gave the audience a painful introduction to the show.

One other thing troubled me. As the Crown Prince, David Haviland must sing a duet with young Louie, a reprise of the King's musical tirade on the perplexities he faces considering the world's changing values. As the Prince, Haviland's performance is just fine, but he does not sing — he talks his way through his lyrics — and though he does this credibly enough, it does not work very well in the scene.

Not withstanding the pacing and the rough spots, The King and I is solid family musical entertainment, with glowing performances in the leading roles that make up for the show's shortcomings at least twice over.

THE KING (Danny Gochnauer) and Anna Leonowens (Sheila Savage) struggle to learn respect for each other and their respective cultures in The King and I. The Rodgers and Hammerstein musical continues at the Western Stage of Hartnell College, Salinas.

Girl Talk: Coping

San Diego actress/improvisationalist Sheri Glaser of the Egomaniacs presents her one-woman show, Girl Talk: Coping. The production, often humorous and sometimes serious, continues at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey.

Glaser portrays six characters of her own invention who share their individual methods of coping in today's world. The characters include a "New Age" Chicano, a manic depressive who attends law school and a 19-year-old who considers herself the very center of the universe.

Girl Talk: Coping, plays at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until July 25. The theater is at 320 Hoffman at Lighthouse in New Monterey.

Ticket prices on Thursdays are $8.50 general, $7 for students, seniors and the military. On Friday and Saturday evenings prices are $1 more. Advance tickets are available at Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. Reservations can be made by calling GroveMont, 649-6852.

Entertainer Clary an artist, too

Clary's directness and enthusiasm belie the tragedy that struck his family.

Of the Holocaust, Clary said, "Very often Merv would try to make me talk about it on the air. In 1980 I grew mature enough and decided it is time for me to talk about it. Because of the world today, the rise in anti-Semitism, people denying the Holocaust, I must speak.

"I have been very active, speaking in junior highs, colleges, synagogues. First I tell them why I didn't talk. Then I explain why I do — there is apathy and the world is not getting any better. The Holocaust was not a genocide that happened in the 1940s. We still have massacres and wars."

Clary can cite many reasons for him to speak out against the mass murder he witnessed.

"You have to do something so that those people did not perish for nothing. They must have more than a paragraph in the history books. Later when you see SS guards living in this country in exile, people should know the evil they did. People must say, 'I will not be a monster. I will not be a sadistic person.' "

Clary credits his youth, both physical and emotional, for helping him to survive 31 months in the camps.

"I cannot put myself in everybody's shoes. I was young, 16, but I also think very immature in those days. That was one of the blessings, really. I never fully realized what could happen to me. I just hoped I could survive the 12 to 17-hour work day.

"Youth was on my side. I was healthy, never really sick. They needed people to work in the factories. Also it was who you were with. There were French kids my own age in there."

Clary was liberated from Buchenwald by the U.S. 3rd Army on April 11, 1945. The following day, President Franklin Roosevelt died.

"The American soldiers lowered the flag for him," Clary remembered.

Women discuss child care programs, problems

"Quality Child Care and Its Effect on the Work Force (Particularly Working Women)" will be the topic of discussion when the Professional Women's Network meets at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday, July 21 in the community room of the Crossroads.

The slate of panelists includes Wendy Banks, early childhood education coordinator for the Carmel Unified School District's newly licensed pre-school at Carmelo School; Walli Poirier, a licensed day care provider who has cared for infants and young children in her Monterey home for nearly 25 years; and Barbara Verba.

The meeting is open to all women interested in expanding their businesses and sharing ideas with other women. There will be no charge for members; however, non-members will be charged $5 at the door, applicable toward membership that evening.

For further information, call the network office at 646-0796.

Kadeka dance troupe stages free program for the kids

Kadeka Dances for Kids, the San Francisco Bay Area's foremost dance company specializing in performances for children and family audiences, will perform a program of humorous and athletic dances at the Forest Theater in Carmel at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 19.

The six-member company jumps, hops, slides and glides through a concert of dances which appeal to young and old alike. Meandering clouds, bubblegum, pinwheels and fireflies, frogs and wading pools and a cavalcade of children's games all find their place in Kadeka's imaginative view of the world.

Kadeka's approach to dance, mixing professional performance with participatory fun, has won it acclaim from community audiences throughout northern California, since its founding in 1980. Recently, Kadeka has been invited to perform at the 17th International Children's Festival at Wolf Trap Farm Park, near Washington, D.C., in Sept. 1987. During the spring of 1988, the company will tour southern California as guest artists of the Los Angeles Music Center's "Music Center on Tour" program.

Carmel's outdoor Forest Theater is located on Mountain View at Santa Rita. Bring a picnic lunch and enjoy a fun afternoon of entertainment. Admission is free.

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

Closet artists

THE CLOSET ARTIST is practically unknown. Few among us are so reticent as to keep our drawing and painting that private. It is true that years ago artists were suspect. I am not just sure of what they were suspected. Maybe it was Loose Morals. Indeed, I think that was it, but now in comparison with the rest of society they emerge as miracles of virtue.

You see everyone is an artist. I doubt if there is a kindergarten today that does not furnish paint, brushes and paper for the kiddies. Well the children do just fine with these materials. They seem to have an instinctive feeling for the use of space. Unhappily enough they encounter such ogres as Perspective and Horizon as they grow older, and their free flowing imagery is channeled.

It has been estimated that the number of artists in the United States trebled in a period of 10 years. I read these figures in some publication recently. In any event there are thousands of people happily drawing and painting. This is, I believe, a healthy escape from the so-called realities of the internal combustion engine and related complexities of modern life.

All of this leads to more work being exhibited, more galleries, more competitive shows, and to the growth of the monster called Merchandising. It is hard to escape as we have, for the most part, a public that does not have an "eye." Courses in art appreciation are purely optional in our school system, unless you are headed for some degree in art.

It is trying for the artist to submit his work to competitive exhibits. He usually pays an entrance fee. Out of the number of entries there are relatively few chosen, so the artist pays for the show and for the prizes given. I know of only one open organization in these parts. How long it will stay that way I don't know. It is the Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation. Nobody judges your work when you apply for membership, or submit same to any of the exhibits.

I think that the artist in selecting among his jewels for the one or ones that he will submit to a show should choose what he thinks is best, not what may appeal to the juror. There is sometimes talk about what the juror likes and the artist may cater to that.

THERE IS AN EXHIBIT at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art at present which is called their Biennial. It will be on the walls through Aug. 30. Out of around 600 pieces submitted, 65 were chosen. According to the director this is a normal percentage, but it seems restricted to me. I think that their walls should be cleared for such a show. This has been done before as I can remember one that was selected by Wayne Thiebauldt that was hung all around the place.

It is my conception, and I think that of most artists, that their work is considered by the juror on its individual merit.

During a meeting held at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and sponsored by Artists Equity to discuss jurying, the director of the musuem said that the current exhibit was chosen to make a show which hung together as a whole, hence some pieces were rejected because they were not consistent with the direction of the show.

The range of this competitive is tremendous. I am talking about the imagery which is really varied. It seems to me that surrealism is the dominant force, but all contemporary ways of looking at life are included. There are also some very dull paintings.

I did like Dianna Forbe's casein on paper entitled, "The Core of Melancholy, the Skin of Mania," also, "A Man and His Mask, Sorrow and Remorse." On the reverse side of this panel is Howard Ikemoto's, "Diego's Dream" which is an oil and enamel on paper. His horse's head has a real nightmare quality. As I had never seen the painting of either one of these artists, is was fresh to me and seemed right out of the Unconscious.

Among the watercolors, I was intrigued by Wildna Northrup's, "Bouillabaisse." In this painting there are multiple areas, and for it to hold together she had to have exact value control. This is not easily done with watercolor. In oil, if you do not succeed, then you can scrape out the pigment and try again. It was pleasing to see Betty Peckinbaugh's charcoal, "The Great Escape." This is a strong drawing and mystic in content.

There is a straight black and white entry done in graphite by Dane Adams. This is a very complex drawing, but the space is so well used that it has a wholeness because the separate deliniations build toward that.

OVER AT the Pacific Grove Art Center there is an ambitious, big showing of the work of nine artists. The title is "The Nature of Reality." I guess the idea is that reality is multifaceted. These pieces are done in a variety of media, but I am not sure why it is also called a "Surrealistic Group Event." Some of the pieces are "straight." I do like Loren D. Adams, Jr.'s Cibachromes which are photos, as I understand it, in which the color is close to permanent. "Teles-Mu" is strange and surreal in that here is a vacant house with waves "lapping at the door," so to speak.

Charles Splady is presenting two sculptures in solid steel. These are minimalist structures which are strong and spare.

I am not at all familiar with the technique, electric drypoint, used by Beatrice Berlin to create "Rock Faces" or "Apprehension at Red Rock." These drawings have vitality. The latter does give the feeling of the possible imminence of disaster which she achieves through her lights and darks. The lithographs in color by Will Tait show feeling and color. Edmund Moody is definitely surreal in his big painting entitled, "The Order of the Ages Sleeps" which is a symbol of the mysticism of the ages. Stephen McMillan presents a lithograph, "Cypress Grove," which is delicate and evocative. The immensity of space in our western landscape is handled very well in Rebecca Fogg's "Badlands I."

As young ladies were "up on their points" practicing ballet in the Elmarie Dyke Gallery, I was not able to review the rest of the "Nature of Reality" show. The hall galleries are devoted to children's art. This is a joyous display which shows their inborn feeling for the use of space. These young people are 8 to 10 years of age, and, although both halls are filled with their work, there is no repetition of images.

Music teachers polish skills to better lead their students sions a day for four days, putting their heads together in a cool sort of way.

"We worked on what jazz is all about in the way it should be presented and thought of when looking at a jazz chart," says Robins, who has taught music in grades three up to college level.

One of the principle things the teachers explored was the various ways to help the students voice chords.

In jazz, many times there are different voicings (notes) of the same chord a player can use which will give an entirely different feeling to the piece. Those are called "subsitution" chords.

ROBINS SAYS he hopes he can help his students become better soloists by giving them a little piece of that knowledge.

"When you teach jazz to students they have to choose the right chords," he says. "You learn that certain notes lead to tension — you must relax that tension, that's what the super players do."

Many times a musician can hit what sounds like a wrong note and make a quick recovery so it sounds like a slur, Robins says. That's what separates the novices from the pros.

One of the exercises the music teachers would do is to get out traditional arrangements of the jazz standards such as "Autumn Leaves" and go through the chords.

After last week's session, Robins says he found that many of those chords in the book were wrong.

"These are the types of things that I will be able to teach the kids," says Robins.

But last week's workshop was not simply theoretical for the teachers. Part of the day was spent applying their new-found knowledge to jazz playing.

After the workshop Robins would "sit in" with the young jazz musicians attending classes at Summer Music Monterey.

"Believe it or not, when you teach and don't use all these things there is a tendency to forget it," says Robins, who also is also directing Monterey Community Band this year.

Robins added that that group is looking for players to rehearse and perform.

So from the classroom Robbins pulled his trumpet out of its case and made for the jazz band at Robert Louis Stevenson — it's called learning made fun.

"I go to these classrooms because it gives me a chance to be a student with my horn," says Robins.

So, for a while, Robins was just one of the boys.

"It really gives you a feeling of what the students feel like," says Robbins. "I placed myself in a position of being in a really learning capacity."

Also from being in the band and hearing input directed at the musicians, Robins says he was able to hear how compliments or criticism affects the student.

But when it came his turn to play, Robins put that aside to toot his own horn, as the saying goes.

"When it came around to doing some jazz solos, I loved it," says Robins.

But there is also a hidden benefit to the high school renewing its music curriculum after almost a 10-year layoff. And that's that it completes the cycle of elementary school to high school music study.

With no music at the high school, students were coming up through the Carmel Unified School District and stopping their development at the high school level, says Robbins.

Now, after the students complete their work with music teacher Karen King at Carmel Middle School they have a place to go.

"She's (King) my feeder system," says Robbins, who adds that King is an excellent flautist .

"Before I got there they had no where to go after junior high," explains Robins.

Once at the high school, Robins says he gives them the most "professionial attitude and structure I can give them in a more rigid and concentrated envvironment."

From his hands, Robins says the students will "feed the rest of the world."

Joan Baez will autograph new book, album

IN CONJUNCTION with the Thunderbird Bookstore and Do Re Mi Records, singer, song-writer, author and activist Joan Baez will be the guest of the Barnyard from 12:30 to 2 p.m. Saturday, July 18.

With the release of her autobiography And a Voice to Sing With from Summit Books/Simon and Schuster and her first studio album in eight years, Recently, from Gold Castle Records, Baez once again bursts into the national spotlight with her combined talents of music and political conscience.

Since her debut at age 18 at the 1958 Newport Folk Festival, Joan Baez has transcended fads and trends in popular music. A figurehead of the early '60s coffeehouse folk scene, the Viet Nam era of protest, the historic mid-'70s Rolling Thunder Review to the recent Live Aid concerts, Baez has never shrunk from controversy as she used her talents to focus attention on political and social injustice as well as the vagaries of human emotions.

Now, in 1987, the new album and book bring Baez to a new chapter in her career. The Barnyard invites the public to meet her and obtain autographed copies of the latest in her long series of exceptional and popular works.

The Barnyard is located at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road. For more informaiton, call the Thunderbird Bookstore at 624-1803.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District will hold a Public Hearing on the proposed changes to their Personnel Ordinance covering Rules & Regulations for employees of the Fire District.

Proposed Changes:

ORDINANCE 87-1

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MID CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT MODIFYING THE DISTRICT'S "PERSONNEL RULES AND REGULATIONS."

Be it ordered by the Board of Directors of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District of Monterey County, California that the below sections changing the district's "Personnel Rules and Regulations" are hereby ordered.

Section I. Change section 8.11 "Overtime Compensation" to read as follows.

"8.11 Overtime Compensation and work hours: All overtime shall be governed by Federal and State laws as modified by this ordinance. In accordance with section 541.201 of Title 29, Part 541 CFR the Operations Officer, Maintenance and Supply Officer, and the Fire Marshal are designated as Administrative Positions. Currently all three positions respond on incidents less than 20% of their normal work cycle. All designated administrative personnel shall be compensated for overtime at the regular pay rate or as modified by a Memorandum of Understanding. The work cycle for administrative personnel shall be a 14 day cycle starting at 0001 Sunday, ending at 2400 Saturday. The work schedule within this cycle shall be established by the Fire Chief.

The firefighters classification assigned to shift duty shall work a 25 hour shift, 9 shifts, based on a 27 day work period as established by the Fire Chief. The 7k exemption of Title 29, Part 553 CFR shall apply to all district personnel. Section 553.15 of Title 29, Part 553 CFR setting sleep hours will cover all shift personnel. A sleep period from 2200 to 0600 (8 hours) is hereby established for the District and five (5) hours each duty shift shall be excluded in counting hours worked in determining compensation for overtime. The shift shall start at 0800 and end at 0900.

Compensatory time off can be used by the employees if taken within the same work period. No employees of the District shall be allowed to accumulate more than 38 hours of compensatory time off. The accumulated compensatory time off must be taken during the same work period earned.

Failure of an employee to take compensatory time off when requested by the Fire Chief shall be grounds for forfeiture of such compensatory time as may be invovled. However, the Fire Chief should insofar as possible, arrange for the use of official compensatory time due to an employee to suit the convenience of the employee and the affected shifts.

In the event of termination, an employee shall receive pay for compensatory time officially recorded to his/her credit. Such payment shall be at the salary rate of the employee at the time of termination.

Employees working out of classification as an exempt employee shall not receive overtime compensation for duties performed as an exempt employee.

Section II. Repeal of Conflicting Ordinances. All former ordinances or parts thereof, conflicting or inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Section III. Validity. The Board of Directors hereby declares that should any section, paragraph, sentence or word of this ordinance hereby adopted be declared for any reason to be invalid, it is the intent of the Board of Directors that it would have passed all other portions of this ordinance independent of the elimination here from of any such portion as many be declared invalid.

Section IV. Date of Effect. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force thirty (30) days from and after its approval as required by law.

PASSED AND ADOPTED AT A REGULAR SHEDULED MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE MID CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT, COUNTY OF MONTEREY, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

The Board of Directors, in accordance with Section 13869 of the Health & Safety Code of the State of California, moved to set the Public Hearing at their Regular Meeting on June 24, 1987.

The Public Hearing is scheduled for Wednesday, July 22, 1987, at 7:30 p.m. at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station, 8455 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel, California, 93923, phone 624-5907.

The public is invited to attend the Public Hearing to present comments on the proposed changes to the ordinance.

Copies of the ordinances and proposed changes are available to Notice of interested citizens at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station. Copies will be mailed if a self addressed 9"x12" enveloped, stamped with $1.41 postage is included with a request.

All written comments sent by mail and received by the district before 5:00 p.m. on July 22, 1987 will be presented to the Board of Directors at the time of the Public Hearing.

THIS NOTICE IS PUBLISHED IN ACCORDANCE WITH DISTRICT POLICY.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
CITY COUNCIL

ORDINANCE NO. 87-19

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA SUSPENDING REVIEW AND ISSUANCE OF PERMITS FOR SECOND STORY CONSTRUCTION IN CENTRAL COMMERCIAL LAND USE DISTRICT.

WHEREAS, the Land Use Code Regulations for the Central Commercial Land Use District allow the development of two-story commercial structures; and

WHEREAS, the Central Commercial Land Use District is almost built up with one and two-story structures; and

WHEREAS, most of the structures currently existing in the Central Commercial Land Use District are nonconforming; and

WHEREAS, the Land Use Code does not provide specific direction for the development of second stories on existing single-story nonconforming buildings in the Central Commercial Land Use District; and

WHEREAS, the lack of specific direction creates inequities in the City's review of individual projects; and

WHEREAS, without more specific regulations, additional second story construction may adversely impact the skyline of the community, and result in structures which are not in scale with the balance of the community; and

WHEREAS, three applications for construction of second-story additions to existing structures in the Central Commercial Land Use District have been submitted to the City in the past year; and

WHEREAS, a survey conducted as part of the Three Phase Implementation Program indicated that potentially 30 per cent of the commercial district could develop second stories, increasing the square footage of the commercial area by 33 per cent or 346,000 square feet; and

WHEREAS, as evidenced by letters received by the City and in the public media, there exists significant public controversy over the potential for additional second-story construction; and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission is currently reviewing the policy direction set in the General plan for commercial construction; and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission is committed to giving its highest priority to the review of existing ordinances and recommending changes to those ordinances for second-story construction to the City Council; and

WHEREAS, time is needed to provide the opportunity for developing the appropriate policy and ordinance direction before additional specific project applications are reviewed;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. SUSPENSION OF PERMITS. No use permit or design review application for second story construction in the Central Commercial Land Use District shall be reviewed and issued by the Planning Commission and the Department of Community Planning and Building for a period of six months.

Section Two. VIOLATIONS. Any person, firm or corporation, whether acting as principal or agent, employee or otherwise violating or causing or permitting the violating of the provisions of this ordinance, is guilty of an infraction. Any building erected or any use established contrary to the provisions of this ordiancne is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof.

Section Three. SEVERABILITY. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Four. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordiance is hereby declared to be an urgency ordinance as setforth in Section 95858 of the planning and zoning statutes of the California Government Code. Any pending projects that have not received a building permit shall not be approved unless they comply with the terms of this ordinance.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY A FOUR-FIFTHS VOTE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this seventh of July 1987, by the following roll call vote:
AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Evans, Fischer, Laiolo, Eastwood
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None
ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Wright

A Carmel Miniature

If "small" is an ingredient of "cute," then this little house is cute as...well, as a bug's ear. It's 520 sq. ft. in all, and that doesn't include the garage...which isn't there anyway.

That's about 1½ times the size of the average Carmel living room. But within that economic space are included (a) a living room with fireplace and bookshelves. (b) a cozy bedroom with closet, (c) a ship's-galley kitchen and dining area in which you can reach everything from one spot, and (d) a bathroom with shower. All these elements are fitted together as neatly as the blades of a Swiss Army knife.

This may not be the smallest cottage in Carmel, but it's certainly in the running. It is well located, south of ocean on 10th Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln. That means it's 5 blocks (downhill) from Carmel Beach, 4 blocks from Ocean Avenue shops, and about 8 blocks from Carmel Mission, just about the geographical center of the original plan of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The lot is shaped like an "L," the wide leg running 65 feet along 10th Avenue, and the long leg reaching back 80 feet. This permits a lovely garden area to the east of the house, with an iron gate, meandering stone paths, and a myriad of flowering plants.

The house itself, when you think about it, is a sort of humbling experience. We always look for lots of space, yet here in this compact home is everything you need and want. For instance, would you believe a 12-bulb chandelier in the living room? It's there, and it fits — like a spectacular assortment of table, floor and wall lamps there and in the other rooms. The stone fireplace is big enough, and it bends around to the short corridor leading past the bath to the bedroom. Nothing is wasted; every square foot counts.

The house is completely furnished with a charming collection of eclectic furniture. All the ceilings are low-pitched, beamed. Inside walls are board-and-batten, with provincial print wallpapers adding charm to the bedroom and dining nook. Floors are carpeted in a deep maroon, except for one space of vinyl in the kitchen.

This place looks (and feels) lived-in. There's no "getting used to it." You're at home the minute you walk in. It's $249,500.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 25

Through the years the Carmel real estate market has had its share of legendary practitioners. One name which deserves special recognition is LOIS RENK, long time owner and operator of the firm from which we draw our name. Lois was born in Idaho, gravitated to the Monterey Peninsula and began her real estate career with Victor Velisserators in Monterey. In 1960 she opened her own firm, quickly becoming the leader in the complicated and sophisticated Carmel real estate market. She played an active role in local and statewide real estate associations, becoming a leader in the movement to elevate the real estate profession to the place of respect it enjoys today. In 1978 Lois retired to Sandpoint, Idaho...establishing with her husband a 120 acre retreat on the banks of Rapid Lightning Creek which is known as "The Peaceable Kingdom." From that location and a small downtown shop she now operates a thriving business dealing in herbs and other organically grown products.
